NOTE TO RESIDENTS

We have a lot of new golf carts in our community moving around lately. Our Rules and Regulations require that all golfcarts be registered. You need to complete a form with your cart details, including the serial number, color, number of seats, and any applicable insurance information. We will place your lot number and a registration tag on to your vehicle so if it is stolen or misused, we will have information to identify your cart. If your cart needs to be registered, please contact Ray Sears @ 813-215-4800 or Rasers@aol.com to schedule your golf cart.

OH, BY THE WAY

We have had quite a few residents inquire about having the Mail Baskets mounted in their driveway. We put up around 130 a year or so and everyone is pleased, especially the Media delivery people. It's a good place to drop off greeting cards, leave a note, or, of course, the Media Magazine. They come in black or white and are free of charge. If you would like to have one in your carport, contact Ray Sears, 813-215-4800 or Rasers@aol.com.

ENTERTAINMENT COMMITTEE NEWS

The Entertainment Committee has wrapped up their season and are working diligently on the next one. They wish to thank all residents and friends for their patronage and support and promise even better events when they return in the fall. If you get a chance, drop them a line or an email and let them know what a good job they did.

Lead your team on the path to innovation

When you're leading a team focused on innovation, you want to spark creative thinking in every member. Try these strategies used by successful leaders in every industry:

- Build a community. Look inside and outside your organization for enthusiastic, imaginative thinkers. Use your network to recruit people to your team, brainstorm ideas, test prototypes, and critique results.
- Experiment. Don't put all your eggs into one basket. When you come up with an interesting idea, test it on a small scale first. Encourage lots of experiments to find one or two that produce excellent results.
- Tell stories. Charts and data aren't very inspiring. To get creative juices flowing, share stories about people and problems. Find out what your customers want and what solutions would make them smile. Recount flashes of genius from the past. You'll get people thinking about the possibilities instead of the obstacles.

Get out of the paralyzing 'I'm not creative' rut

Some people seem to be naturally creative. If you're not one of them, don't fall into the trap of thinking you'll never have an original idea or find an ingenious solution. Try these tips for overcoming a negative mindset:

- Question your attitude. The first step in getting unstuck is believing you can do it. Start by asking yourself, "Why do I feel uncreative?" You may discover that your belief is based on mistaken assumptions about your capabilities.
- Ask "What if?" Let go of the need to craft a perfect solution right away. Examine the problem from different angles and look for new possibilities without regard to what's easy or practical. Asking, "What if I did this?" can unlock a stream of fresh ideas.
- Hold onto your momentum. Don't stop generating ideas too quickly. Once you're on a roll, keep going until you have plenty of options to choose from. First ideas don't always work, and you may be able to combine aspects of different solutions to come up with something new that will dazzle everyone.

Quotes:

Creative confidence is about believing in your ability to create change in the world around you.

Try this uncommon career advice

Read enough self-help books, and you'll run across a lot of the same repetitive career advice: Work hard, be helpful, go the extra mile. If you're already doing this, and want to add oomph into your career, consider this advice from the Fast Track Promotion website:

- Develop your emotional maturity. Focus on staying calm no matter what happens at work. Treat everyone with respect. Learn to choose your words carefully—and more important, recognize when it's best not to speak at all.
- Negotiate in good faith. Find out what the other person wants, and work toward a mutually satisfying agreement instead of one with winners and losers. In other words, seek solutions, not victories. Negotiate as if you're both on the same side.
- Shift your point of view. Support your organization's goals, not your own. When you make a decision, ask yourself whether it's one your manager or CEO would make. If not, reconsider your priorities.
- Provide real value. Instead of just doing your job, find out how your work supports your organization's objectives, and then give a little extra to help your it thrive. Talk to your manager about what you've done and what you can do to add to the organization's success.
- Listen to feedback. Praise is fun to receive, but often we learn most from criticism. Make a point of listening to and considering other people's points of view, and incorporating their feedback into your performance. You'll show that you're a team player committed to improvement.

Don't be afraid to ask for help

Many people avoid asking for advice from fear of being seen as ignorant or incompetent. But soliciting guidance from others can show that you're open to new ideas and focused on success. Here's how to ask for help and look good doing it:

- Be sure you really need help it. Don't interrupt a colleague for something you can figure out on your own with a little more time and effort. Save requests for problems that are truly difficult to solve.
- Ask the right person. Identify the person who can really help you. You'll irritate your co-workers by asking for help on something that's outside their area of expertise.
- Be direct. Don't beat around the bush when you need assistance. If you don't know the person, introduce yourself and explain why you think he or she is best person to help you out. Most people are happy to lend a hand, and they'll feel flattered that you think highly of their skills.
