Daily

Beltane, May 1. A Gaelic May Day festival most commonly held about halfway between the spring equinox and summer solstice.

International Firefighters' Day, May 4. A day when the world's community can recognize and honor the sacrifices that firefighters make to ensure that their communities and environment are as safe as possible.

Mother's Day, May 9. Send a card, make a call, or meet on Zoom to remind mom how much you love her.

International Museum Day, May 18. An opportunity for museum professionals to meet the public and alert them to the challenges that museums face.

Memorial Day, May 31. A day to remember those who gave their lives for their country.

Memorial Day: a solemn occasion

Memorial Day began in the 19th century as "Decoration Day." Citizens were urged to decorate the graves of soldiers who'd died in the Civil War. After World War I, Decoration Day expanded to include ceremonies honoring the dead in all of America's wars.

Decoration Day became Memorial Day officially in 1967. In 1968 the Uniform Holidays Act established it as one of three holidays (including Veteran's Day and George Washington's birthday, now called President's Day) celebrated on a Monday to create a convenient three-day weekend. Memorial Day is now observed on the last Monday in May.

Call it a clan, call it a network, call it a tribe, call it a family: Whatever you call it, whoever you are, you need one.

— Jane Howard

It didn't matter how big our house was; it mattered that there was love in it.

— Peter Buffett

Nap time

An old, tired dog ambled into a man's backyard one afternoon. He was obviously well fed, and wore a collar, showing that he had a home and was well taken care of.

The man patted the dog on the head for a few minutes. Then the dog laid down and went to sleep. An hour later, he woke up and walked away.

The dog came back the next day, and the day after that, until soon he was coming every single day. The man didn't mind, but he was curious, so one day he pinned a note to the dog's collar:

"Your wonderful, sweet dog comes to visit me every day for head pats and then a long nap. I just wanted you to know that we enjoy his visits."

The next day the dog arrived with a note in response:

"Thank you! He lives in a house with five children, two under the age of three, so he's trying to catch up on his sleep. Can I come with him tomorrow?"

Things to think about

Ever wonder about these?

- What if my dog only brings back the ball because he thinks I like throwing it?
- If poison is past its expiration date, does that mean it's no longer poisonous?
- Which letter in the word "scent" is silent, S or C?
- Do twins ever realize that one of them is unplanned?
- Why is the letter W called "Double U"? Shouldn't it be called "Double V"?
- Do you ever think that every time you clean something, you make something else dirty?
- Have you ever noticed that the word "swims" upside down is still "swims"?
- Did you know that trying to lose a game of rock-paper-scissors is just as hard as trying to win?

Language follies

English is strange, isn't it?

- "Minute" and "minute" shouldn't be spelled the same.
- I am not content with this content.
- I object to that object.
- I need to read what I just read.
- Excuse me, but there's no excuse for this.
- Someone should wind this article up and throw it in the wind.

Something new to read?

A chicken walks into a library and up to the front desk. “Buk,” it says.

The librarian gives it a book. The chicken leaves, then comes back a few minutes later to return the book. “Buk,” it says again, and the librarian hands him another book.

This goes on several more times, until the librarian gets curious. He follows the chicken outside, down the street, into a park, and to the edge of a pond, where the chicken drops the book in front of a frog.

“Buk, buk,” it says.

The frog pushes it away. “Reddit, reddit!”

A fishy tale

James asked his friend Bill, “How’s that new fish you bought? You told me he was really something special.”

Bill said, “To tell the truth, I’m a little disappointed. The guy at the fish store said he could sing like a bird.”

“What? You bought a fish because you thought it would sing like a bird?”

“Well, yeah. It’s a parrot fish.”

James said, “Look, Bill, you might be able to teach a parrot to sing, you’re never going to get anywhere with a parrot fish.”

Bill said, “Oh, he can sing, but he’s terribly off-key. Do you know how hard it is to tuna fish?”

If you’re going to tell people the truth, you better make them laugh; otherwise they’ll kill you.

Keep the fog out

We'll probably be wearing masks to protect ourselves from the coronavirus for at least a few more months, and one problem masks present for people who wear glasses is fogging. Masks cause the warm air of your breath to rise up, creating fog when it hits the cooler air above. The New York Times offers this advice for keeping your vision clear:

- Get the right fit. Look for a mask with an adjustable nose-bridge wire, which can limit how much warm air rises up to meet your lenses.
- Use tape. You can use paper tape to secure the upper part of the mask to your face, like doctors do.
- Protect your lenses. Apply a little baby shampoo or hand soap to your lenses. This can reduce the surface tension of water molecules, stopping moisture from becoming fog.
- Use antifog spray. Just don't use a spray containing alcohol, which can damage lenses. Also, sprays may not work on glasses with antireflective coating.

In any language, 'Mother' still loves you best of all

A mother's love has a language all its own, as the poets and greeting card manufacturers like to say. In honor of Mother's Day around the world, here's how to say "mother" no matter where you happen to be:

- Albania: Mëmë, nënë
- Belarus: Matka
- Czech Republic: Abatyse
- Estonia: Ema
- France: Mère, maman
- Greece: Mãna
- Indonesia: Induk, ibu, biang, nyokap
- Netherlands: Moeder, moer
- Portugal: Mãe
- Samoa: Tina
- Sweden: Mamma, mor, morsa

Life began with waking up and loving my mother's face.

‘Everything you love will be lost’

Writer Franz Kafka (1883–1924) never married and had no children. According to a story, he liked to walk through a park in Berlin where one day he met a girl who was crying because she had lost her favorite doll. She and Kafka searched for the doll unsuccessfully.

Kafka told her to meet him there the next day and they would come back to look for her. The next day, when they had not yet found the doll, Kafka gave the girl a letter “written” by the doll saying, “Please don’t cry. I took a trip to see the world. I will write to you about my adventures.”

Thus began a story which continued until the end of Kafka’s life.

During their meetings, Kafka read the letters of the doll, carefully written with adventures and conversations that the girl found adorable.

Finally, Kafka bought another doll and gave it to the girl. “It doesn’t look like my doll at all,” said the girl.

Kafka handed her another letter in which the doll wrote: “My travels have changed me.” The little girl hugged the new doll and carried it home.

A year later Kafka died.

Many years afterward, the now-adult girl found a letter inside the doll. In the tiny letter, signed by Kafka, was written: “Everything you love will probably be lost, but in the end, love will return in another way.”

So no aliens, but still a fascinating phenomenon for scientists to study.

Here’s the thing—you don’t need a captive audience to be heard. You need better true stories, well told. You don’t have to rely on luck to tell better stories, you can do it with intention and practice—by design. You don’t need permission to take the stage. You need to find and practice telling stories that matter.

— Bernadette Jiwa

There is something in us, as storytellers and as listeners to stories, that demands the redemptive act, that demands that what falls at least be offered the chance to be restored.

THOUSANDS manufactured home residents have won over $156,600 since our contest began. Put the ticket in our Monthly Mania drop box in your community or mail your paid receipt to us at Monthly Media • 220 Bahama St. • Venice, FL 34285.
