NUMBERS IN THE NEWS

Online sources of news dominate

The days of getting your news from Walter Cronkite or the morning newspaper are long gone. The Pew Research Center reports that 86% of Americans get their dose of news from a smartphone, computer, or tablet “often” or “sometimes.” Sixty-eight percent rely on television, 50% listen to the radio, and 32% read print publications.

Digital devices are the dominant medium, with 52% of survey respondents saying they prefer to get their news from an online platform—a news website (26%), social media (11%) or podcasts (three percent). Just 35% said they prefer TV, seven percent like the radio, and five percent say their preference is print.

SEPTEMBER CALENDAR

Baby Safety Month. Parents and caregivers have many responsibilities, but keeping baby safe and healthy is a No. 1 priority. Whether you are expecting your first baby, adding to your growing family, or becoming a grandparent, now is the time to put into action some simple steps to keep baby safe.

Classical Music Month. In 1994, President Bill Clinton issued a proclamation making September Classical Music Month. The proclamation read in part: “Classical music is a celebration of artistic excellence. ... This month we exalt the many talented composers, conductors, and musicians who bring classical music to our ears.”

National Suicide Prevention Month. All month, mental health advocates, prevention organizations, survivors, allies, and community members unite to promote suicide prevention awareness.

Self-Awareness Month. Three key questions can help us increase our self-awareness: Who am I? What do I want? How do I want to be in my life? Reflecting on these questions will lead you to new insights about yourself. Give yourself the attention you deserve. When you do, you’ll be equipped to create the you that you want to be and create the life you want to have.

Low-impact exercise

Feeling the need to exercise? Start out with this one:

Stand on a comfortable surface with plenty of room on each side. With a five-pound potato bag in each hand, extend your arms straight out from your sides and hold them there as long as you can. Try to last for a full minute, then relax.

Each day you'll find yourself holding this position just a bit longer.

After a week, move up to 10-pound potato bags. Then try 50-pound bags. Eventually, try to get to where you can lift a 100-pound potato bag in each hand and hold your arms straight for three minutes.

When you feel confident, put a potato in each bag.

The last drop

A bartender was so sure he was the strongest man around that he offered a standing $1,000 bet. He would squeeze a lemon until all the juice ran into a glass. Anyone who could squeeze one more drop of juice out would win the money.

Many people tried over time—weightlifters, longshoremen, etc.—but nobody could do it.

One day a scrawny little man came into the bar wearing thick glasses and a polyester suit. He said in a tiny squeaky voice, "I'd like to try the bet."

Everyone laughed, but the bartender grabbed a lemon and squeezed it dry. Then he handed the remains to the little man.

Then the crowd's laughter turned to total silence as the man gripped the lemon and squeezed six more drops into the glass.

As the crowd cheered, the bartender paid the $1,000 and asked the man, "What do you do for a living? Are you a lumberjack, a weightlifter, what?"

"No," the man replied. "I work for the IRS."

- Math teacher: “If I have five bottles of beer in one hand and six in the other hand, what do I have?” Student: “A drinking problem.”
- Two psychics run into each other on the street. One says to the other, “You’re fine, but how am I?”

Missing ingredient

A food critic visited a local restaurant to review its food for the local magazine. The owner welcomed her and showed her to a table.

After a while, the critic called the owner over to say that there was something missing in her bowl of soup.

The owner asked if it was too spicy, too sweet, or too salty. The critic said no, so the owner decided to taste the soup himself. “Give me a spoon.”

"That's what's missing," said the critic.

The power of story

Author Neil Gaiman explains the power of stories with a tale on the Books Bird website:

“My cousin Helen, who is in her 90s now, was in the Warsaw ghetto during World War II. She and a bunch of girls in the ghetto had to do sewing each day. And if you were found with a book, it was an automatic death penalty. She had gotten hold of a copy of Gone with the Wind, and she would take three or four hours out of her sleeping time each night to read. And then, during the hour or so when they were sewing the next day, she would tell them all the story. These girls were risking certain death for a story. And when she told me the story herself, it actually made what I do feel more important. Because giving people stories is not a luxury. It’s actually one of the things you live and die for.”

An enduring act of kindness

An act of kindness can have a lifelong effect, as this story illustrates:

A Jewish family who had immigrated from Lithuania to the United States took pity on a seven-year-old boy and brought him to their home. He spent the night in family home, where for the first time in his life he was treated with kindness and tenderness. When he went to bed, the mother sang him Russian lullabies, which he sang along with her. Later he learned to sing and play several Russian and Jewish songs.

Over time, the boy became the adopted son of this family. The father gave him money to buy his first musical instrument.

The little boy grew up and wrote a book about the family, and proudly spoke Yiddish fluently.

In memory of this family, he wore the Star of David. He said that in this family he learned determination and "to live a real life."

The little boy's name was Louis Armstrong.

Humanity’s legacy of stories and storytelling is the most precious we have. All wisdom is in our stories and songs.

— Doris Lessing

The history of Labor Day

Labor Day is a creation of the labor movement and is dedicated to the social and economic achievements of American workers. It's a national tribute to the contributions workers have made to the strength, prosperity, and well-being of the United States.

Some records show that Peter J. McGuire, general secretary of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners and a co-founder of the American Federation of Labor, was first to suggest a day to honor those “who from rude nature have delved and carved all the grandeur we behold.” But other research seems to support the contention that machinist Matthew Maguire, later the secretary of Local 344 of the International Association of Machinists in Paterson, N.J., proposed the holiday in 1882 while serving as secretary of the Central Labor Union in New York. The Central Labor Union adopted a Labor Day proposal and appointed a committee to plan a demonstration and picnic.

Either way, the first Labor Day holiday was celebrated on Tuesday, Sept. 5, 1882, in New York City, in accordance with the plans of the Central Labor Union. The Central Labor Union held its second Labor Day holiday just a year later, on Sept. 5, 1883.

In 1884, the first Monday in September was selected as the holiday. As labor organizations grew in size and power, so did the idea of Labor Day. In 1885 Labor Day was celebrated in many industrial centers of the country.

The first governmental recognition of the holiday came through municipal ordinances passed during 1885 and 1886. While the first state bill proposing the holiday was introduced into the New York legislature, Oregon passed the first law on Feb. 21, 1887. Four more states—Colorado, Massachusetts, New Jersey, and New York—created the Labor Day holiday by legislative enactment that same year.

By the end of the decade Connecticut, Nebraska, and Pennsylvania had followed suit. By 1894, 23 other states had adopted the holiday in honor of workers, and on June 28 of that year, Congress passed an act making the first Monday in September a legal holiday in the District of Columbia and the territories.

Stay healthy with fiber

Fiber, in the form of fruits, vegetables, whole grains, and other carbohydrates that pass through your body undigested, is important to your digestive health, and your overall well-being in general. Too little fiber in the diet is associated with a higher risk of heart disease and diabetes. But only seven percent of adults in the U.S. get enough fiber, according to a study reported by U.S. News & World Report.

How much should you eat? Overall, health experts say you should consume 14 grams of fiber for every 1,000 calories you eat in a day. For women, the target is 25 grams in a 2,000-calorie daily diet; for men, it's 38 grams in a 2,500-calorie diet. People over 50 can consume less.

What to eat? Try a one-cup serving of pearl barley, which has six grams of fiber, instead of white rice, with just two grams.

Avoid injury as you age

As we age, our bodies get injured more easily. That's a fact of life, but you can avoid serious injury at any age by following some basic guidelines from the Seacoast Online website:

- Stay physically active. Keep your body moving as much as you can to avoid stiffness and pain associated with arthritis, which grows worse the less you move. Regular, moderate exercise can decrease the impact of meniscal tears and bulging discs.
- Eat a healthy diet. Green leafy vegetables like kale, spinach, and arugula help keep your bones strong and durable. So do nuts, fish, and grapefruit. Unprocessed oatmeal, raisins, blueberries, and unsalted nuts can keep your heart healthy as you age. Check with your doctor on what diet is best for you.
- Maintain your balance. Slips and falls can cause fractures and broken bones, so keeping your balance is crucial. Practice by standing on one foot while you brush your feet or wash the dishes. Try walking on your heel or toes for a short distance. Yoga and tai chi can also help you promote balance.
- Strengthen your core muscles. Keeping your core—abs, hips, and buttocks—strong will help you stand and sit more erect, as well as prevent back and neck pain and help you feel more energetic in general. Pilates is one good technique for getting and keeping your core in shape.
