FROM THE EDITOR

Thanks everyone for your concern. First off, I'm OK, I was a bit shaken up though. For those of you that aren't aware, I was robbed at the Gas Station at 8 am today. After my hands stopped trembling, I managed to call the Police. They were quick to respond and calmed me down because my blood pressure went through the roof! My money is gone. The police asked me if I knew who it was and I told them "Yes, it was pump number 3".

Ok, so my attempt at humor is over. Now is the time we will start working on the directory. If you know of any changes, please let me know by email or drop off at home.

Next deadline is July 12th for our submissions.

Thank you I advance for all your help and consideration.

JUST SAYIN'

Jeanne Hunter

Picked up Quinn (11-year-old grandson) from school. He gets in the car and using his most knowing voice, says, “There are two kinds of Grandmas in this world, the ones who bake for anybody who asks and the narcissists.” I was really scared to ask, but he told me I was a baker. I know I'm a narcissist, but I feel so much better knowing he hasn't figured it out yet.

What a month I just got through. I started in the hospital getting a pacemaker implanted and some other heart related poking, prodding, testing, and medicating. Now I'm on pace and feeling good. My daughter borrowed my car for a couple days and somehow lost my spare car key. The following week I took Lucy (my Warrior Princess Chihuahua) to the vet for a final follow up appointment from an infection she had. She checked out fine, but the tech came out (we wait in the car since covid) with Lucy AND an estimate for needed dental work. So, I made another appointment for the following week. Appointment day came and somehow, I managed to lose my car key, my ONLY car key (spare still not found). Cancelled vet appointment and called a locksmith.

Remember when we used to get a spare key made at any hardware store for a couple bucks? That was back when you brought a tv home, plugged it in and got a picture. And if it quit working, you pulled out a couple tubes, plugged them in at Walgreens and replaced the bad ones. Or maybe called a repairman to come out and fix it. Now, with progress, the locksmith came out, programmed a new car key and for ONLY $350, gave it to me. I thought I should get a spare since they seemed to be disappearing. That plain old copy with no programming needed was another $85. Next up, my tv died. Couldn't turn it on or get a picture. Progress again; no tubes to take out and check, no repairman to call. So, I bought a new one.

About that time, my share of the hospital bill came. It was a few hundred dollars and I wondered what the actual bill was. Sit down before you read this....the total bill was $295,050. Really! You read it right. I can't imagine what it would have been if they gave me good food! I coughed up a couple fur balls and gave thanks for insurance. Next up was the trip to the vet for doggie dental surgery. Lucy had 4 teeth pulled and I had more money pulled. It was more than my payment to the hospital!

The month was almost over, three days to go, I opened my wallet and moths flew out. I looked at Lucy and saw her face was swollen. Of course, it was the weekend and I had to wait two days to get to the vet again. On the last day of the month, we made the trek to the vet. Looks like there's a tiny piece of tooth root he didn't get out and now she has an infection. More meds and a dental appointment in two weeks. I am hopeful though because that will be in a new month. For now, we went home, locked the doors, pulled the blinds, and moved very slowly for the rest of the day.

Let's change the subject. Billy Joe and Bubba were eating lunch at a diner when the woman at the table next to them started choking. Bubba immediately jumped into action. He lifted the lady from her chair, pulled up her skirt and pulled down her panties. He then licked her butt cheek. She was so shocked she coughed out the food in her throat, arranged her clothes and thanked Bubba. Back at his table Billy Joe said, “Gosh, Bubba, that hind lick maneuver really works!”

Ever look around the room for something in your hand? Tech tip for the month: it's definitely not helpful to use the flashlight on your phone to find your phone! Yep, I tried it and just as the light came on, I figured out I had the phone.

I was visiting my daughter last night when I asked if I could borrow a newspaper. “Mom, this is the 21st century,” she said. “We don't waste money on newspapers. Here, use my iPad.” I can tell you this. That fly never knew what hit him.

I have a Firestick remote for my tv. It's an Amazon product. So lately, a few shows that looked interesting were only available on PBS Masterpiece. an Amazon Prime channel, or by paying for them individually. Hmm, I got curious and looked it up online. So, for $5.99 a month, if you already have Amazon Prime, you can get PBS Masterpiece and watch all the Masterpiece shows. While looking for info on this service, I came across PBS Passport. Turns out if you become a PBS member for $5 monthly (note: 99 cents less than above) one benefit is PBS Passport. With that you can watch all the Masterpiece shows and EVERYTHING else on PBS from their library. Those sneaky rascals who live in my Firestick don't even mention the cheaper alternative with more shows to watch.

It's not true that all fairy tales begin with “Once upon a time...” Many of them begin, “If I am elected, I promise...”

One last story...Years ago, we had a dog named Roscoe. Adopted him from the pound. He was a mostly Russian wolfhound, and he was huge. He not only took things off my kitchen counter, but he also surfed the top of my fridge. He once took my iron off the fridge, and I found it in the yard in pieces. I didn't even know you could break an iron into pieces!

We were in the middle of remodeling our house, so I got out of cooking Easter dinner for the family, extended family, and friends. I was assigned the task of preparing 120 of my famous yeast rolls for the two Easter feasts we attended. I'm still mad at the electrician for getting the new oven hooked up so quickly. It was the only appliance in the whole house that worked, thus the assignment.

I made the decision to cook the rolls on Saturday evening and to reheat Sunday morning. Since the kitchen was freshly painted, you can imagine the odor. Not wanting the rolls to smell like Sherwin Williams paint, I put the rolls on baking sheets and set them in the living room to rise for five hours. After three hours, Terry and I decided to go out and eat, returning about an hour later. An hour after that, the rolls were ready to go into the oven.

It was 8:30 pm. When I went to the living room to retrieve the pans, much to my shock, one whole pan of 12 rolls was empty. I called out to Roscoe and my worst nightmare became a reality. He literally wobbled over to me. He looked like a combination of the Pillsbury Dough

Family Owned & Operated

For Over 3 Decades!

Boy and the Michelin Tire Man wrapped up in fur. He groaned when he walked. Even his cheeks were bloated.

I ran to the phone and called our vet. After a few seconds of uproarious laughter, he told me the dog would probably be okay. However, I needed to give him Pepto Bismol every two hours for the rest of the night. Who knows why I thought a dog would like Pepto Bismol any more than my kids did when they were sick? Suffice it to say that by the time we went to bed, the dog was black, white, and pink. He was so bloated we had to lift him onto the bed for the night.

Naively thinking the dog would be all better by morning was very stupid on my part. We arose at 7:30 and as we always do first thing, we put the dog out to take care of his business. Well, the dog was as drunk as a sailor on his first leave. He was running into walls, falling flat on his rear. Most of the time when he was walking, his front half was going one direction and the other half was either dragging in the grass or headed 90 degrees in another direction. When he ran down the small incline in our back yard, he couldn't stop himself and nearly ended up running into the fence. His pupils were dilated, and he was dizzy as a loon. I endured another few seconds of laughter from the vet (second call within 12 hours) before he explained that the yeast had fermented in his belly and that he was indeed drunk. He assured me that, not unlike most binges we humans go through, it would wear off after about four or five hours. He then told me to keep giving the dog Pepto Bismol.

Afraid to leave Roscoe by himself in the house, Terry and I loaded him up and took him with us to my sister's house for the first Easter meal of the day. My sister lived on a ranch, a 10-to-15-minute drive. Rolls firmly secured in the trunk (120 less 12) and drunk dog leaning from the back seat onto the console of the car between Terry and me, we took off.

Now I know you probably don't believe that dogs burp but believe me when I say that after eating a tray of risen unbaked yeast rolls, DOGS WILL BURP. These burps were pure whiskey breath. They would have matched or beat any smell in a drunk tank at the police station. But that's not the worst of it. Now he was beginning to pass gas and it smelled like baked rolls. We endured this for the entire trip to Karen's. We were thankful she didn't live any further away than she did.

Once Roscoe was firmly placed in my sister's garage with the door locked, we finally sat down to enjoy our first Easter meal of the day. The dog was the topic of conversation all morning long and everyone made trips to the garage to witness my drunken dog, each returning with a tale of Roscoe's latest endeavor to walk without running into something. Of course, as the adage goes, "What goes in must come out," and Roscoe was no exception.

Granted if it had been me that had eaten 12 rolls, unbaked yeast rolls, you might as well put a concrete block up my behind, but alas a dog's digestive system is quite different from yours or mine. I discovered this was a mixed blessing when we prepared to leave Karen's house.

Having discovered his "packages" on the garage floor, we loaded him up in the car so we could hose down the floor. This was another naive decision on our part. The blast of water from the hose hit the poop on the floor, and the poop on the floor withstood the blast from the hose. It was like Portland cement beginning to set up and cure. We finally tried to remove it with a shovel. I (obviously no one else was going to offer their services) had to get on my hands and knees with a coarse brush to get the remnants off the floor. And as if this wasn't degrading enough, the dog in his drunken state had walked through the poop and left paw prints all over the garage floor that had to be brushed too.

Well, by this time, the dog was sobering up nicely, so we took him home and dropped him off before we left for our second Easter dinner at Terry's sister's house.

I am happy to report that in a few days the dog was back to normal (for him), both in size and temperament. He had a bath and was no longer tricolor. None the worse for wear, I presume. I am also happy to report that I found two risen unbaked yeast rolls hidden inside my closet door. It appears Roscoe must have come to his senses after eating ten of them but decided hiding two of them for later would not be a bad idea. This required some research on the computer; "how to clean unbaked dough from the carpet."

That's it for this month. Up next, a new financial crisis...I need to get gas.

SHORT HISTORY OF TAPS

The bugle call known as "Taps" dates from the American Civil War. In July 1862, while the Army of the Potomac camped near Harrison's Landing, Virginia, Brigadier General Daniel Butterfield summoned Private Oliver Willcox Norton, his brigade bugler, to his tent. Butterfield, who disliked the colorless "lights out" call then in use, whistled a different tune, and asked the bugler to play it for him. After repeated trials, Norton played a 24-note call which suited the general. (According to some interpretations, Butterfield's tune was a variation on an earlier bugle call, the "Scott Tattoo," first published in 1835.) Butterfield then ordered that within his brigade, the new call would replace the regulation Army Taps. The next day, buglers from nearby brigades came to the camp of Butterfield's brigade to ask about the new call. They liked the tune and copied the music. During the Civil War, its popularity spread throughout Union ranks, and even among some Confederate forces.

Shortly after Butterfield composed the tune, Taps was first sounded at a military funeral for a Union cannoner killed in action. The deceased soldier's commanding officer believed that a bugle call would be less risky than the traditional three-rifle volley, which the enemy could misinterpret as an attack. In 1874, Butterfield's Taps became the U.S. Army's official bugle call. Taps has been used by the U.S. armed forces ever since — at the end of the day, during flag ceremonies and at military funerals. Whenever a service member is buried with military honors anywhere in the United States, the ceremony concludes with the three-rifle volley and the sounding of Taps on a trumpet or bugle. Melancholy yet serene, the call lingers in memory.

The name "Taps" derives from the fact that the lights-out call was traditionally followed by three drum taps.

Day is done, gone the sun,
From the skies.
All is well, safely rest,
God is nigh.

Go to sleep, peaceful sleep,
May the soldier or sailor,
God keep.
On the land or the deep,
Safe in sleep.

Love, good night, must thou go,
When the day, And the night
Need thee so?

All is well. Speedeth all
To their rest.

Fades the light; And afar
Goeth day, And the stars
Shineth bright,
Fare thee well; Day has gone,
Night is on.

Thanks, and praise, For our days,
'Neath the sun, Neath the stars,
'Neath the sky,
As we go, This we know,
God is nigh.

AMERICAN FLAGS

Many Bay Ranch residents like to fly American flags in front of their homes. With daily flying, flags can get pretty ratty. Flag etiquette would have us dispose of ragged flags respectfully. Please leave your old flag at coach 167 for proper disposal.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Use baking soda to get paint off your hands, clean porcelain sinks, brushing your teeth, clean toilets and soak up moisture. Any other uses you can think of?

Fruit Pizza

Sugar cookie dough
8 oz cream cheese
1/3 cup sugar
1/2 tsp vanilla Fruit

Preheat oven 350
Spread a roll of sugar cookie on pizza pan (1/2" thick)
Bake for 12-15 minutes
Let cool

Fold/mix softened cream cheese, (I microwaved for 30 seconds), sugar and vanilla together.

Spread on and sprinkle chopped fruit of your choosing.

Enjoy
