OCTOBER CALENDAR

American Pharmacists Month. The role pharmacists play in our health, our communities, and our lives has never been more crucial. Take a moment to reflect on their work, appreciate their efforts, and spread the word about the valuable services pharmacists provide.

Cybersecurity Awareness Month. This year's theme, "See Yourself in Cyber," will focus on the "people" part of cybersecurity, providing information and resources to help educate the public and ensure all individuals and organizations make smart decisions, whether on the job, at home, or at school, now and in the future.

Down Syndrome Awareness Month. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, approximately one in every 772 babies in the United States is born with Down syndrome, making Down syndrome the most common chromosomal condition. About 5,100 babies with Down syndrome are born in the United States each year.

National Substance Abuse Prevention Month. Millions of Americans suffer from substance abuse, which includes underage drinking, alcohol dependency, nonmedical use of prescription drugs, abuse of over-the-counter medications, and illicit drug use. Early intervention helps prevent substance abuse and reduce the negative consequences of addiction before they occur.

Daily

International Coffee Day, Oct. 1. A celebration of coffee, launched in Milan in 2015, this day also is used to promote fair trade coffee and raise awareness of the plight of the coffee growers.

World Teacher's Day, Oct. 5. Established in 1994, World Teachers' Day is devoted to "appreciating, assessing, and improving the educators of the world" and providing an opportunity to consider issues related to teachers and teaching.

Indigenous People's Day, Oct. 10. Celebrated on the second Monday of October to honor the cultures and histories of the Native American people.

Columbus Day, Oct. 12. Date Italian explorer Christopher Columbus reached the Americas in 1492. (Observed on Oct. 10 in the U.S.)

Conflict Resolution Day, Oct. 22. Promoting awareness of mediation, arbitration, and other creative, peaceful means of resolving conflict in schools, families, businesses, communities, governments, and the legal system.

The two sons

Two sons worked for their father on the family's farm. The younger brother was steadily given more responsibility over the years, and one day the older brother asked his father to explain why.

The father said, "First, go to Kelly's farm and see if they have any geese for sale. We need to add to our stock."

The brother soon returned. "Yes, they have five geese they can sell us."

The father said, "Good. What's the price?"

The son went back to the farm and returned shortly with the answer: "The geese are $10 each."

The father asked, "Can they deliver the geese tomorrow?"

Again the son went back, and came back soon with the answer: "They can deliver the geese tomorrow."

The father asked the older brother to wait and listen, then called the younger brother in from the fields. "Go to Davidson's farm and see if they have any geese for sale. We need to add to our stock."

The younger brother soon returned with the answer. "They have five geese for $10 each, or ten geese for eight dollars each; and they can deliver them tomorrow. I asked them to deliver the five unless they heard otherwise from us in the next hour. And I agreed that if we want the extra five geese we could buy them at six dollars each."

The father turned to the older son, who nodded. He now realized why his brother was given more responsibility and reward.

Essay test

A teacher called little Johnny to her desk. "This essay you wrote about your dog Spot is the exact same essay your brother wrote word for word. What do you have to say for yourself?"

"Of course it's the same essay," Johnny said. "It's the same dog!"

Never will I allow myself to become so important, so wise, so dignified, so powerful, that I forget how to laugh at myself and my world.

Just imagine if we laughed more frequently, if we had the unmitigated courage to touch each other, it would be just the beginning of paradise — now.

The crucial difference

A heart surgeon took his car to his local garage for a regular service. “So tell me,” said the mechanic, “I’ve been thinking about what we both do for a living, and how you get paid a lot more than me.”

“Yes?” said the surgeon.

“Look at this,” said the mechanic as he opened the hood. “I open it up, check how it’s running, fix the valves, and put it all back together so it works good as new. We basically do the same job, don’t we? But you get paid ten times more than I do. How do you explain that?”

The surgeon thought for a moment, then smiled. “Try it with the engine running.”

First confession

After twenty-five years in the same parish, Father O’Riley was retiring. At his retirement dinner, an eminent member of the congregation — a leading politician — had been asked to make a short speech, but he was late. So the priest took it upon himself to fill the time, and stood up to the microphone:

“I remember the first confession I heard here 25 years ago and how it worried me as to what sort of place I’d come to,” Father O’Riley said. “That first confession remains the most troubling I’ve ever heard. The chap confessed that he’d stolen a TV set from a neighbor and lied to the police when questioned, successfully blaming it on a local scallywag. He said that he’d stolen money from his parents and from his employer; that he’d had affairs with several of his friends’ wives; that he’d taken hard drugs.

“However, I’m pleased to say that as the days passed I soon realized that this sad fellow was a frightful exception and that this parish was indeed a wonderful place full of kind and decent people.”

At this point the politician arrived and apologized for being late. Eager to take the stage, he immediately stepped up to the microphone and pulled his speech from his pocket:

“I’ll always remember when Father O’ Riley first came to our parish,” said the politician. “In fact, I’m pretty certain that I was the first person in the parish that he heard in confession ...”

Hearing returned

An elderly gentleman had a serious hearing problem for a number of years. He went to the doctor, who fitted him for a set of hearing aids that help the gentleman’s hearing gradually return to 100%.

The elderly man went back to the doctor a month later for a checkup. The doctor performed some tests, and then said, “Your hearing is perfect. Your family must be really pleased that you can hear again.”

The gentleman smiled. “Oh, I haven’t told my family yet. I just sit around and listen to them talk. I’ve already changed my will three times!”

Lies and the lying liars who tell them

Let's be honest — everybody lies. In fact, a survey of 2,000 U.S. adults by One Poll for Online Betting Guide found that people tell an average of four lies every day, and suspect that other people lie to them six times daily.

When do people lie? Thirty percent say they lie when asked if they like what someone else is wearing, and 27% will lie if someone makes them a meal they don't like.

Are you a convincing liar? The survey, which focused on poker, found that only about 24% of people believe they have a good poker face, while 37% think they do a good job of misleading others. Only about one in 20 people say they have a bad poker face. On the other hand, 53% of people in the survey believe they can spot when someone is lying to them, and just eight percent say they're poor at it.

On the whole, 42% of people surveyed said they feel they have a hard time concealing their true feelings, and 54% said they consider honesty very important. Assuming they're telling the truth.

Social media distrust is widespread

If there's one thing we can all agree on in these divided, polarized days, it's that we don't trust social media with our personal data. The Washington Post reports that although social media is ubiquitous these days, 64% of Americans feel the government should rein it in.

Among the top social media platforms, Facebook is the least trusted, with 72% expressing little or no trust in its handling of users' personal information, with 20% saying they trust it a lot. That's followed by TikTok, which 63% of social media users don't trust, and Instagram, with 60% trust.

Amazon seems to have earned the most confidence, with 53% of customers saying they trust it a great deal or a good amount, followed by Apple at 44% and Microsoft at 43%.

Fifty-six percent of people surveyed feel that Facebook has a negative impact on society, with only 10% finding it a positive.

Age is just a number. It's totally irrelevant unless, of course, you happen to be a bottle of wine.

A man is rich in proportion to the number of things he can afford to let alone.

Is your home safe?

Your lovely home can be a death trap if you're not careful. Consumer Reports suggests checking these rooms for hidden dangers:

Kitchen

- Don't fall. Close your dishwasher and oven when you're not loading or unloading them so you don't trip over the door. Wipe up spills on the floor immediately. Put items you use often on lower shelves in cabinets. If something is up high, use a sturdy stepladder, not a chair, to reach it.
- Check wiring. Have an electrician examine your kitchen wiring every few years to make sure it hasn't deteriorated to the point where it might spark a fire. Also, install GFCI outlets that will cut electric current if it fluctuates.
- Monitor your refrigerator. Protect yourself from food spoilage by making sure your refrigerator and freezer are keeping foods at the right temperature. Condensation on the walls is a sign that your unit may not be performing properly and safely.

Laundry room

- Clean your dryer vent. Clogged vents can cause a fire. Clear out the lint filter before every use, and have a professional check your vents once a year. Signs that a vent is clogged include clothes taking longer to dry than usual, clothes feeling hotter to the touch just out of the dryer, and the laundry room itself feeling hot and humid, like a sauna.
- Secure detergent pods. If you use detergent pods, make sure children can't get at them. Just rubbing them on your skin or eyes can cause harm.

Winter is coming: Prepare your home

Before the weather gets too cold, it's wise to check your house for vulnerabilities to the coming winter. Some areas to examine:

Roof

- Look for missing shingles, cracked flashings, and broken overhanging tree limbs.
- Check the chimney for mortar deterioration and loose bricks.
- Inspect the underside of the roof, from the attic, for any signs of leakage.

Exterior

- Check at the foundation for cracks in the concrete, and low spots in the soil where water can accumulate against the foundation.
- Look at the caulking in the siding and around the window and door trims.

Heating system

- Turn on the heating system to ensure that the heat is being delivered to all outlets.
- Check your filter and change it if necessary. Buy some extra filters so you can change them easily during the winter season.

Seven wonders

A teacher asked her students to make a list of what they considered the seven wonders of the world. After a few minutes of discussion, they came up with this list:

- Egypt's Great Pyramids
- The Taj Mahal
- The Grand Canyon
- The Panama Canal
- The Empire State Building
- St. Peter's Basilica
- The Great Wall of China

The teacher noticed that one young girl hadn't participated. She asked for the girl's own thoughts.

"I couldn't make up my mind," the student said, "because there are so many."

"Why don't you tell us what they are, and maybe we can help you choose?" the teacher suggested.

The girl hesitated, and then read her list:

- To see
- To hear
- To touch
- To taste
- To feel
- To laugh
- To love

Moral: The things we overlook as simple and ordinary, that we take for granted, are the most truly wondrous.

No single answer to leadership

Leadership consultant and blogger Tim Milburn likes to tell this story about the noted leader John C. Maxwell:

As he finished up a speech, Maxwell was approached by a young man with a determined expression on his face: "Dr. Maxwell, what's the one thing I need to know in order to be an effective leader?"

Appreciating the young man's sincerity, Maxwell replied with the same determination: "Young man, the one thing you need to know is that there is more than one thing you need to know."

In anything that counts, success is based on lots of factors. Looking for one simple answer will rarely get you what you need.
