HISTORY OF THE VINOY HOTEL

---

The Vinoy Park hotel was first built in 1925 by Aymer Vinoy Laughner, a Pennsylvania billionaire. It took ten months to complete construction for this 375-room seasonal hotel, which provided a warm escape for wealthy northern visitors from December to March; it opened just in time for New Year's Eve, 1925. It was built during the "Boom era" of hotels in St. Petersburg which had many boarding houses but very few hotels especially at the size of the Vinoy. When it first opened, its nightly rate of $20 made it the most expensive in the state. The hotel was constructed in Mediterranean Revival architectural style, with seven stories and four canted wings. Its most notable and eye catching feature is its pink exterior, making it an iconic addition to St. Petersburg history. It was designated a historic place in May 1986.

After 1929 while most of the country was suffering in the Great Depression, wealthy northerners continued to vacation at the Vinoy and enjoyed the warm weather and golf courses. It remained a prized getaway location for celebrities, U.S. presidents, such as Calvin Coolidge and Herbert Hoover, and authors. The hotel was finally struck with reality when World War II broke out. In 1942, the hotel was turned into a training school for the U.S. Army Air Force. The hotel reopened in 1944 after being purchased by wealthy Chicagoan Charles H. Alberding. The 1950's brought the great highway expansion and northern visitors continued to enjoy the warm winter months in St. Petersburg. Even celebrities such as Marilyn Monroe visited the hotel at this time.

After the war it was sold for $700,000 and continued to prosper until the late 1960's when regular maintenance was neglected and the hotel began to fall into disrepair. It closed for good in 1974 and its contents of fine china and silver were sold at auction.

In May of 1990, the restoration of the Vinoy began after sitting vacant for 18 years. This two year project at the cost of $93 million, restored, expanded, and enhanced the hotel to its former glory. A tennis complex, 18-hole golf course, heated swimming pools, and a fitness center had all been added to the hotel as a modern amenity facelift. More celebrities continue to visit the hotel such as B.B. King, Raquel Welch and Harrison Ford.

At nearly 100 years of age, the Vinoy Renaissance St. Petersburg Resort is getting a facelift. The iconic hotel overlooking the downtown St. Petersburg's waterfront has announced plans for a "comprehensive transformation" in the coming months, with the lobby, ballroom, restaurants, spa, guest rooms and veranda all getting updates. In a statement, hotel leaders said the hotel would keep its mix of Mediterranean and Old Florida design, promising its original cypress wood beams and ceramic tile floors would be "restored within the new interiors." Most guest rooms would get walk-in marble showers, and the pool would get a companion restaurant and bar to the Paul's Landing area. Other planned highlights: a restoration of the ballroom's Dale Chihuly chandelier, a new walled garden and a patisserie in the lobby. The veranda's rocking chairs will remain. The renovations, which are already underway, will cost "tens of millions," according to a hotel spokeswoman. They represent only the first phase of a planned multi-year renovation of both the hotel and adjacent properties, including the Vinoy Golf Club. Designs for those changes are in the early planning stages.

The hotel will remain open during renovations; although some guest rooms and areas will be closed at certain times. "The Vinoy has been adored by both local Florida residents and visitors for nearly a century," general manager Tabish Siddiquie said in a statement. "This transformation further establishes the Vinoy as St. Petersburg's social hub and a pillar of the flourishing community."

"...I am so happy with my new windows...I'd like to commend your work crew. Earbie and Larry were fantastic! I couldn't believe the clean-up EVERYDAY! The whole job took just a week even with all the rain delays. I would and WILL highly recommend your company to my friends and neighbors. Of course I won't need to say a word - the house is doing all the talking! Thank you so much for my beautiful new house."
