Resident Electrical Issue Procedures

f a resident is experiencing electrical issues such as no power, partial power, or lights flickering the following steps should be taken:

- 1. Check with a neighbor who is NOT on your electrical pedestal to see if they are experiencing a power issue.
- 2. Check with a neighbor who is on the same electrical pedestal as you to see if they are experiencing a power issue.
- 3. Call Duke Energy to have them check the power coming into your electrical pedestal if it is only you or those on your pedestal with issues or to report an area outage if neighbors not on your pedestal also have a power outage.
- 4. If the power to the pedestal is good, then a call should be made to an electrician. Ranch Mobile recommends that you call Weather Chek Electric, Inc. at 727-943-0886. They are the park's service provider for the electrical pedestals and they offer 24-hour service. If you call Weather Chek, and if they find that the problem is with the electrical pedestal, they will let the Board know and make any repairs or replacements needed at the Park's expense, including the service call charge. If it is not the pedestal, but a resident issue with the pedestal breaker to the house, then Weather Check will let the resident know this. If the issue is with the electrical system that is the resident's responsibility, Weather Check will charge the resident for the service call and the resident can choose to have them also complete the repair or the resident can call another electrician at their expense.
- 5. If the resident chooses to first call an electrician, other than Weather Chek, the resident will be responsible for 100% of the service call expense and any repairs associated with the service call.

**If you happen to have the Duke Energy insurance, ask that Weather Chek Electric, Inc be the provider sent to service your electrical issue.

Bringing out the best in others — naturally

f you've ever had anyone appreciate you for your natural abilities, you'll appreciate the story of the flower seed principle.

Try to think of every person as a flower seed: He or she already has the disposition to become something amazing and beautiful. But each seed will become only a certain kind of flower.

In the workplace, you overhear a manager say—"I think that sunflower over there has some potential, and I think with a little training he could become a really great long-stemmed rose."

The truth is that a sunflower seed is only going to produce a sunflower—and how beautiful the flower becomes often depends on how it is nurtured.

But in the workplace what often happens is someone in charge brings in some information to try and teach the sunflower how to try and become a long stemmed rose. The sunflower is encouraged to have lunch with and network with the roses, in the hope that one day, he too can become one of them. Before the sunflower goes to bed each night, his boss tells him to say over and over to himself, "I am a beautiful long stemmed rose."

And so do you know what the sunflower becomes.

He does not become a rose—certainly not. No. He becomes the world's most insecure sunflower. Because no one has ever noticed his own innate beauty and the gifts he has for the world. Because for a long time everyone has been telling him it's not OK for him to be who he is.

The best thing anyone can do for someone else is to try and find out what that person's nature is. And then once you find out what that person's nature is you ask yourself, "What can I do to cultivate the person's natural talents and abilities?"

A true leader would say: "Here's a seminar on how a bunch of beautiful sunflowers got together and did something wonderful. Here's a place where you can go and network with other sunflowers."

That is how you help someone tap their true potential, which is what good leaders do. First you find out what kind of seed the people already have inside and then you help them grow into what they were naturally meant to be.

On middle age

Middle age is the time when a man is always thinking that in a week or two he will feel as good as ever. — Ogden Nash

On death

Death is one of the few things that can be done as easily lying down. The difference between sex and death is that with death you can do it alone and no one is going to make fun of you. — Woody Allen

Why Not Look After Your Ears Too?

Hearing changes often do not result in an overall loss of volume. Some sounds remain as audible as they always were, yet others become harder to hear, and some conversations require more attentiveness. You might notice that words just don't sound clear.

If you suspect that your hearing may be changing, it's up to you to be alert to the signs and have your hearing tested by a qualified professional.

On life

Someone told me life is a water wheel. It turns. The trick is to hold your nose when you're under and not get dizzy when you're up. — James Baldwin

A leadership odyssey

The story of Homer's Odyssey is about a king named Odysseus. He and his men spent 10 years fighting the Trojan War, and they won.

Then they spent another 10 years trying to get home. Along the way, Odysseus and his men stop at an island to get provisions. They meet people who sit around all day and eat the sweet fruit of the lotus trees.

The fruit is so delicious these lotus eaters spend all their time eating it. They stop caring about anything else.

Odysseus' men try the fruit and soon they are addicted too. They have no interest in going home.

They forget all about their goal.

Odysseus wants to get back home and he gets his men to get on the ship and leave.

Odysseus kept his eye on his vision and purpose.

He never forgot his goal.

Why people are afraid of Friday the 13th

Priday the 13th this year. Fear of the number 13 is known as triskaidekaphobia.

It's estimated that about 17 million to 21 million people in the United States are afflicted with a fear of Friday the 13th. Not only that, but it's estimated that somewhere between $800 million and $900 million is lost on any given Friday the 13th, because people are afraid to fly and do business like they do normally, according to Donald Dossey, founder of the Stress Management Center and Phobia Institute in Asheville, N.C. People who are afraid of Friday the 13th are possibly people who consider themselves to be unlucky in the first place, and they are probably superstitious, says Richard Wiseman, a psychologist at the University of Hertfordshire in Hatfield, England. In a suvey of 2,068 people, Wiseman found that one-quarter of respondents believed that the number 13 was bad luck. He also found that the people who believed in this bad luck tend to be more anxious on Friday the 13th, and so it may be their own expectations and anxiety that bring on the "bad luck."

Here are a few facts about the history of the idea that the number 13 is unlucky:

• There was a Norse myth about 12 gods in heaven having a dinner party. A 13th guest walked in, the god Loki, and shot the god of joy, Balder. When Balder died the whole world became dark.

• Judas, who betrayed Jesus, was the 13th guest at The Last Supper.

• Witches in ancient Rome supposedly gathered in groups of 12. The 13th attendee was the devil.

• More than 80 percent of high rises lack a 13th floor.

• Most airports skip a 13th gate.

• Hotels and hospitals often do not have room number 13s.

As for the Friday part of the bad luck, it seems that this belief rose from the idea that Jesus was crucified on a Friday, that Eve tempted Adam on a Friday, and that Abel was slain by Cain on Friday.

How to keep an argument from escalating

ere are some suggestions on how to keep a disagreement from blowing up into a argument:

- Welcome the disagreement. Try to think of it this way—perhaps the argument will give you the chance to correct something before you make a big mistake.
- Distrust your first instinct to be defensive. Be careful. Slow down and stay calm. Sometimes our first reaction to something is our worst reaction.
- Rein in your temper. Hang on and don't get angry too fast. If you do, it will likely make you look bad.
- First and foremost—listen. Give the other person a chance to speak her mind. Try to build bridges and dismantle any barriers your mind tries to create.
- Look for agreement. After the other person has had his say, first look for areas that you agree on and say them out loud.
- Be honest. Look at what the other person is saying and if she's right, tell her. This will likely have a disarming and calming effect on the conversation.
- Promise to think over what the other person has said, even if you don't like it. And then make good on your promise.
- Thank the other person for his or her interest. Try to think of the other person as someone who really wants to help you. After all, you are interested in the same things.
- Don't take action until you have had time to think things over. Suggest a meeting for later, and then prepare for that meeting by asking yourself lots of hard questions. Could the other person be right? Could I be wrong? Partially wrong?

What to do when someone interrupts you

- t is annoying when someone interrupts you while you're talking. Here are a few strategies for handling interrupters:
- ▲ Just hold up your index finger. You might be surprised at how effective this is. Merely say, "Wait a minute, I'm not done with what I'm saying..."
- Keep talking and interject, "What I was trying to say was..."
- The next time someone interrupts you, use it as an opportunity to do something rather than just get upset.
- Pause, then say, "I wasn't finished; hear me out." Or pause, then tell the person how it makes you feel when you are cut off—without attacking the person. Here are a few lines that might help:
- "Please let me finish..."
- "It's really hard for me to listen to you right now because you did not let me finish what I was saying."
- "When I'm talking to you and you interrupt me with something that has nothing to do with what I'm talking about, it makes me feel like you're not interested in what I'm saying."

-adapted from The Lost Art of Listening, by Michael P. Nichols

How to win someone over

f you want to win people over to your way of thinking, here are some guiding principles to help you:

- If you want to get the best out of an argument— avoid it.
- Always show respect for another person's opinions.
- When you're wrong—admit it.
- Be friendly.
- Find a way to get the person to agree with you on something right away even if it's just a small point.
- Let the other person talk— a lot.
- Allow the other person to think the idea is hers.
- Try to see from the other person's perspective.
- Be truly sympathetic to what the other person is saying.
- Try to appeal to noble notions in the other person. — adapted from How to Win Friends and Influence People, by Dale Carnegie

An alphabet for mom...

A is for ADULT: A person who has stopped growing at both ends and is now growing in the middle.

B is for BATHROOM: A room used by the entire family, believed by all except mom to be self-cleaning.

C is for COMMITTEE: As in decision by committee, which is how mom says something will be decided when she has already made up her mind how things are going to be.

 $\mathbf{D}$  is for DATE: Infrequent outings with dad where mom can enjoy worrying about the kids in a different setting.

E is for EMPTY NEST: See "WISHFUL THINKING."

F is for FABLE: A story told by a teenager arriving home after curfew.

G is for GUM: Adhesive for the hair.

H is for HINDSIGHT: What mom experiences from changing too many diapers.

I is for INFLATION: Cutting money in half without damaging the paper.

J is for JUNK: Dad's stuff.

K is for KISS: Mom's medicine.

L is for LEMONADE STAND: Complicated business venture where mom buys powdered mix, sugar, lemons, and paper cups, and sets up a table, chairs, pitchers and ice for kids who sit there for three to six minutes and net a profit of 15 cents.

M is for MAYBE: No.

N is for NONSENSE: What mom says your friends are full of.

O is for OVERSTUFFED RECLINER: Mom's nickname for dad.

P is for PANIC: What a mother goes through when the darn wind-up swing stops.

Q is for QUIET: A state of household serenity, which occurs before the birth of the first child and occurs again after the last child has left for college.

R is for REFRIGERATOR: Combination art gallery and air-conditioner for the kitchen. S is for SPOILED ROTTEN: What the kids become after as little as 15 minutes with grandma.

T is for TOWELS: See "FLOOR COVERINGS."

U is for UNDERWEAR: An article of clothing, the cleanliness of which ensures the wearer will never have an accident.

V is for VACATION: Where you take the family to get away from it all, only to find it there, too.

W is for WALLS: Complete set of drawing paper for kids that comes with every room.

X is for XOXOXOXOXO: Mom salutation guaranteed to make the already embarrassing note in a kid's lunch box even more mortifying.

Y is for "YIPPEE!": What mothers shout the first day of school.

Z is for ZUCCHINI: Vegetable which can be baked, boiled, fried or steamed before kids refuse to eat it.
