SEASON OF LIFE . . . 23 years ago

by Meg French

When I try to reconstruct the most important turning point in my life, I have to reflect on the incredible journey that God has taken me on. I once read a book by Joyce Landorf called Change Points . . . it was a sequence of events that happen to each one of us as we grow from childhood to adulthood and beyond. I have experienced each one and I have loved each phase of my life. Each has been a major growing experience, but one that I am involved in right now, in the year 2002, is retirement . . . what an interesting and challenging part of life.

Being in Real Estate for 15 years and the busy, hectic . . . I would like to say schedule, but there was no set schedule. Every day was different and challenging. High heels, hose and a suit each day, looking very professional for my clients, morning, noon and night. My own office . . . meetings, closings, open houses, depositing money in the bank . . . and helping people. What a wonderful and fulfilling career . . . but age tells us that now it is time to find a less stressful and relaxing life . . . soooo . . . Retirement, here I am.

My day now consists of jeans, sweatshirts and tennis shoes . . . my big decisions are whether to shower in the morning or at night . . . what do we eat . . . where should we go . . . what do we eat . . . When we moved into Lake Highlander Park, we really didn't feel like seniors and for awhile I fought the idea. As we got ourselves settled in the park . . . thoughts kept coming to me of my very active life and I told my husband that I hoped I could feel like we belonged . . . were we really old enough to be called seniors?

After working hard all day, moving into our Little Tin Castle, we climbed into bed, exhausted, said a little prayer that God would help me to know that this was the right decision and that I would feel like we belonged.

God does work in mysterious ways, his wonders to perform. And sometimes he even chuckles.

My prayer was answered the next morning as we sat at our breakfast table, I asked my husband if he wanted some grapes and he looked at me and said "Hang the drapes" . . . we both laughed till our sides hurt! Yes, we belonged . . . and I am sure that my incredible journey will continue as I find fulfillment in being a senior.

DANCE PARTY A HIT!!

The Cinco de Mayo dance party was tons of fun!!!! We appreciate all who came and brought delicious food --- and especially thank DJ Tom (in the hat)!!!

Al and Joyce -- June 27th

They previously resided at 189 and 212 for the past 17 years. They were active volunteers in our L.H. Community. THE FUNNIES

from Al Szynski

A well-known speaker lectured to the members of a literary society, and at the end of his address the secretary approached him with a check. This he politely refused, requesting it be given to some charitable cause. “Would you mind if we add it to our special fund?” the secretary asked. “Not at all. What is the fund for?” “To help us get better lecturers next year.”

“Apparently, the library at the University of Utah has installed what they’re calling a ‘cry closet’ ... It’s going to be a shock when those students graduate. Take it from me, there are no ‘cry closets’ out here in the real world. You will have to use your car in the McDonald’s parking lot like the rest of us.” – James Cordon

Dave Barry “Never under any circumstances take a sleeping pill and a laxative on the same night.”

DID YOU KNOW

by Brenda Boudreau

Mr. Rogers personally answered his fan mail. A 5-year-old blind girl once write him and asked him to say when he was feeding his fish because she was worried about them and couldn’t see. From that moment on, every time he fed the fish, he said it out loud.

‘Doodlebug’, an orphaned baby kangaroo, was found abandoned on the side of the road when he walked up to a human and held out his arms asking to be picked up. His rescuer later gave him a teddy bear, and he wouldn’t stop hugging it.

After needing 13 liters of blood for surgery at age 13, a man named James Harrison pledged to donate blood once he turned 18. It was discovered that his blood contained a rare antigen that cured Rhesus disease. He made over 1000 donations throughout his lifetime and saved over 2.4 million unborn babies from the condition.

Oh, my aching neck...

The neck is a pretty common place to experience pain. That's because your neck is the most mobile part of the spine — so injuries and painful conditions are more likely to occur there. If you are suffering from neck pain, you should see a health professional about it.

To prevent neck pain and injury, follow these tips:

- Maintain proper posture. Use a chair that is appropriate, stable and the right height. Use a table that is also the right height to avoid neck strain. Change your position periodically, so that exhaustion and pain will not occur. Avoid twisting your neck suddenly. When you are standing, maintain a relaxed neck, with your head upright and your chin retracted. You'll also want to get the right size pillow. A pillow should support your neck in a balanced position.
- Exercise your neck regularly to maintain and improve flexibility. Take a break from whatever you do during the day, about every half hour. Stretch your neck in different directions by looking up, down, to the right and to the left. Another good way to exercise this area is to raise and squeeze your shoulders together and then relax. Repeat this a few times.

Could I have my dressing on the side, please?

Trying to live a healthy lifestyle takes some practice— especially when it comes to eating a better diet. If you are trying to count calories or limit your fat intake, here are a few pointers for dining in or out:

- Watch the sauce. Pay attention to the amount of salad dressings or other sauces you use. Order condiments on the side and add small amounts at a time so that you are in control.
- Hold the mayo. Instead, use spices, herbs and mustards for taste.
- Get steamed. Make or order foods that are baked, grilled, poached or steamed, rather than fried.
- Make it veggie. Dishes that contain lots of veggies or fruits are usually lower in calories and fat.
- Get a doggie bag first. Before you dig in, scrape some of that mega-portion into a doggie bag.
- Mix it up. One of the healthiest ways to eat is to include variety, moderation and balance. — adapted from the National Restaurant Association Web site

How a little imagination changed the way we shop

A little story about imagination.

Before supermarkets existed as we know them, going to the grocery store used to be a totally different experience. In the old days, customers walked in and told a clerk what they wanted. Then the clerk set to the task of compiling the order for the customer.

Clarence Saunders made his living as a grocery store clerk in a small Southern town. He had never made more than $20 a week.

One day he stood in line at a cafeteria carrying a tray, waiting to select his food. Clarence Saunders had always seemed like an ordinary man — nothing in him so far had indicated that he had any unusual abilities.

But that day, as he stood in line, something happened. In his mind two ideas collided. His imagination took off and he took the “self-help” idea of the cafeteria and applied it to a grocery store — and thus was born the Piggly-Wiggly chain of grocery stores.

Clarence Saunders, the $20 a week clerk became a millionaire. And grocery shopping was forever changed. — adapted from The Law of Success in Sixteen Lessons, by Napoleon Hill

An unexpected conversation

A class of MBA students took a field trip away from their university. On the bus ride on the way back to the school after the trip, the driver pulled over at a rest stop. Most of the MBA candidates had been partying heavily the night before. One first year student, headed for the first stall in the restroom.

As soon as he entered the stall, the man in the next stall said, “Hi, there. How’s it going?”

The first-year student thought it was odd that the man in the next stall wanted to start a conversation, but he thought, “Who knows, this guy might be one of the facilitators at school, one who might be giving me a grade in the near future.”

He felt silly talking through the stall wall, but he answered, “Not bad.”

Then the man in the next stall said, “What are you doing?”

The intimidated student answered, “Well, we’re all headed back to school from the field trip, right?”

To which the man in the next stall said, “Look. I’ll have to call you back. Every time I say something, some genius in the next stall keeps answering me.
