Message from Board President

Roy Joeveer reports, “Barbara Rushton has taken over our Administrative and bookkeeping duties this month and is a welcome addition to Colonial Village. We have had a few home unit sales and have replaced yet another Property Landscaper. Mr. Konrad Heidenrich of Largo joined Bill Kearney effective August 1st. Please extend your greetings to Konrad.”

Meet Our New Residents

Unit #124 was sold by Len and Louise Rainy. The new residents’ names are Will and Sharon Glazer. Unit #88 is in the process of being sold by Len and Barbara Mc Carron. The new residents will be Michael and Beth Conway from Illinois. Mike’s mom, Kathleen Conway, lives in CV, Unit #20.

Meet Our Longtime Residents

Bob and Betty Green, Unit #4, moved from their home State of New York to Palm Hill in 1991. After 17 years there, they moved to Colonial Village in 2008 and are full time residents. They had visited CV residents Kathy and Frank Haynes and decided to make CV their new home. They enjoyed playing cards, bingo, shuffling; and table games. Bob served on the CV board for 5 years. Bob was a general manager of Grand Union grocery chain for 25 years in Poughkeepsie NY; then bought a Pepperidge Farms franchise and a cookie franchise. After selling them, they moved to Florida where they enjoy the warmth and a longer gardening season. Betty volunteered to work on the CV bulletin for a short time and then delivered a section of homes for a couple of years. Betty was a Registered Nurse in Troy and Poughkeepsie for 11 years. She worked at Bealls in Florida. They have three children, a daughter in NY, a son in Fl and a daughter in SC; 5 grandchildren and 4 great grandchildren. They went back to NY in December four years ago for a wedding and to celebrate their 60th wedding anniversary. They were glad to get back to the warmth of FL.

Meet Our Longtime Residents

Henry and Catherine Flavell reside in Unit #12 during the winter months since 1994. Their home is in Ontario. They have 2 children and 5 grandchildren all residing in Canada. Henry's health is "marvelous" now, he recovered very well from his 'head' operation after severe suffering from pain for many months. He was a policeman for 30 years. His interest is modern history and he is a big soccer fan (no particular team). Catherine's employment was with the Supreme Court in Toronto for 13 years. She is often seen at the pool and the library. Catherine, an avid reader, reads 3 books every 10 days. She finally had her second hip replacement surgery done in May and is recovering nicely! If you hear a lady's voice with a lovely heavy Scottish accent, you'll know it is her! She enjoys English lady and English writers; as well as loves to cook and to try new recipes.

Congratulations, Richard and Tammy Bradish

Wedding bells chimed and people cheered on August 19 for Richard and Tammy (Ruth) Bradish, Unit #135 in the lavishly decorated community hall. The catered affair was enjoyed by many CV residents, and family and their friends.

Summer Social Activities

Directors Jon Lago, Unit #96 and Steve Hartseil, Unit #70, have been busy handling park affairs, maintenance matters and new personnel, as well as working with Barbara Rushton, Office Administrator for efficient administrative operations. They, along with Terri and Dave Benham, Unit #129 coordinate social activities. There have been fewer activities because of the extreme heat, and some evolve around the pool in the early evening hours. The pool water has been successfully lowered to about 88 degrees!

September 18th Social Activity- White Castle Berger Party

The next social will be a White Castle Berger feast with sides. Jon Lago will be making a Pineapple Cake with Whipped Cream, Crushed Pineapple and Mandarin Orange Topping dessert.

Celebrating the Meaning of Labor Day

Many Americans celebrate Labor Day with parties, parades, picnics, and cookouts. But it's important to remember who and what we are celebrating: American workers and labor.

“American labor has raised the nation’s standard of living and contributed to the greatest production the world has ever known... the nation pays tribute on Labor Day to the creator of so much of the nation's strength, freedom, and leadership—the American worker.” – DOL.gov (U.S. Department of Labor)

Labor Day is a meaningful holiday, but it shouldn’t be the only time we celebrate workers and colleagues. Why is employee recognition important? Employee recognition impacts everything from productivity to team morale and from staff retention to company culture. That's why it’s always the right time to celebrate employees!

What is Labor Day?

Labor Day is an annual celebration of the social and economic achievements of American workers. Labor Day is the first Monday of every September.

The First Labor Day

September 5, 1882, the Central Labor Union held the first Labor Day celebration in New York City. Although federal Labor Day is on a Monday, the first celebration took place on a Tuesday.

History of Labor Day

The meaning of Labor Day is rooted in the late nineteenth century, according to the U.S. Department of Labor. That was when labor activists proposed “a federal holiday to recognize the many contributions workers have made to America’s strength, prosperity, and well-being.”

Before it was a federal holiday, Labor Day was recognized by labor activists and individual states:

- New York was the first state to introduce a Labor Day bill.
- February 21, 1887, Oregon was the first state to pass a law recognizing Labor Day. Oregon was followed by Colorado, Massachusetts, New Jersey, and New York passing Labor Day laws the same year.
- By 1890, Connecticut, Nebraska, and Pennsylvania had followed suit, and by 1894, 23 more states adopted the Labor Day holiday.

On June 28, 1894, Congress and President Grover Cleveland passed an act making the first Monday in September of each year a legal holiday, Labor Day.

Who is the founder of Labor Day?

Oddly enough, researchers have credited two unrelated men as the founder of Labor Day. Peter J. McGuire and Matthew Maguire:

- Peter McGuire was the general secretary of the Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners and a co-founder of the American Federation of Labor.
 - Matthew Maguire was the secretary of the Central Labor Union in New York. He later became a secretary of the International Association of Machinists in Paterson, New Jersey.
- Both men are rumored to have proposed the holiday in 1882, and both attended the country's first Labor Day parade in New York City.

Generations United wants everyone to do something grand for Grandparents Day!

About National Grandparents Day
National Grandparents Day is rooted in the innovative work of two committed and passionate pioneers: Jacob Reingold and Marian McQuade.

During the 1961 White House Conference on Aging, Jacob Reingold of the Hebrew Home at Riverdale (now part of RiverSpring Living) was inspired by a speech concerning the “new image of the aged,” and focused on recognizing the role of millions of older Americans who are grandparents. That same year, on September 16, 1961, the first day specifically honoring grandparents was held at the Hebrew Home. By 1963 it became an official holiday in the borough of the Bronx. And on January 27, 1987, the Congressional Record affirmed Jacob Reingold’s pioneering efforts to gain recognition for grandparents as well as a national day to celebrate them.

In 1970, Marian McQuade began a campaign to establish a special day of recognition for grandparents. Through her efforts, she reached out to the civic, business, faith, and political leaders and began a statewide campaign for Grandparents Day. In 1973, the first Grandparents Day in West Virginia was proclaimed by Governor Arch Moore.

Their work culminated in 1978 when the United States Congress passed legislation proclaiming the first Sunday after Labor Day as National Grandparents Day. A presidential proclamation was signed by President Jimmy Carter and thus began the observation of this special holiday.

Generations United urges grandparents and older adults to share their wisdom, perspectives, and fundamental civic values with young people on Grandparents Day. We’re calling on older adults to join with today’s youth in reaching out to decision-makers and beginning one of the most important dialogues in our history: discussing how, as a country, we can address the many challenges facing future generations—from climate change to literacy to health and wellness to financial stability. Celebrate Grandparents Day by committing to Do Something Grand!

In 1973, the first Grandparents Day in West Virginia was proclaimed by Governor Arch Moore. Their work culminated in 1978 when the United States Congress passed legislation proclaiming the first Sunday after Labor Day as National Grandparents Day. The month of September was chosen for Grandparents Day because it is the start of autumn, as in the “autumn of one’s years”. It was made National Grandparents Day in the US in 1978 under President Jimmy Carter. National Grandparents Day started in Canada in 1995.

Making gold from your life

Do you have an idea about something you want to do—something you want to start—but you don't really feel like you have the know-how to do it. That seems to be a problem that is cropping up more and more for human beings. We just don't feel like we can do it, whatever it is. Maybe it's because we've gotten so far away from the day when people had to do virtually everything for themselves—needed a blanket to stay warm during the winter, someone in the household had to make it. Needed a fence to keep deer out of the garden—someone had to build it. But as technology takes us further and further from that type of self-sufficiency, it is as if human beings are losing the ability to believe in themselves—in our innate ability to solve problems with the creativity we are all born with.

Remember the words of Nelson Mandela: “Our deepest fear is not that we are inadequate. Our deepest fear is that we are powerful beyond measure. It is our light, not our darkness that most frightens us. We ask ourselves, who am I to be brilliant, gorgeous, talented and fabulous. Actually, who are you not to be?” — adapted from Waiting for the Mountain to Move, by Charles Handy

How to run a race well

There was a Special Olympics race and eight children glowed in anticipation of the event. Excitedly the children all took their places and got ready for the start of the race.

A starter gave them the signal and shouted, “Get on your mark, get set—goooo!” And the children sprinted out. Soon one girl clearly took the lead with the other children running to catch up.

However, back in the pack of runners one boy, who had gotten off to a slower start, tripped and fell. He began to cry on the racetrack. He whimpered and tears spilled down his cheeks.

The leader of the race, a girl with Down syndrome heard her opponents anguish—and though she was clearly set to win the race she stopped and ran back to the boy. When she reached him, she gingerly dropped down and gave him a kiss on the knee and then she wiped away his tears.

When the other runners saw what was going on they also turned around and ran back. Together they pulled the boy up—then they set off to finish the race they had begun.

As the children approached the finish line it was hard to find a dry eye among the spectators. The runners came down the final stretch toward the finish line—with their arms linked. And each one of them was absolutely delighted to be together. —adapted from Relationships of Grace, by Chris Karcher

Courage is grace under pressure.
— Ernest Hemingway.

You May Need An Audiologist

The easiest way to determine if you should go to an audiologist is to determine if you have hearing loss

SOME TELL-TALE SIGNS TO LOOK FOR ARE:

- People sound muffled or mumbly
- You have difficulty hearing high-pitched sounds such as birds, doorbells, your phone, or alarm clock
- It's challenging understanding conversations in noisy places, like a restaurant

But don't let this list define your hearing loss—you can (and should) visit an audiologist before you even have signs of hearing loss. This will ensure that if you do develop hearing loss over time, it's caught as soon as possible and prevents disruption to your life.

How a 17 year old started a thriving online business

At the age of 14, Joseph Cohen started his online venture. As a matter of fact, he waited until his parents went out of town for the weekend, but instead of throwing a party a la Risky Business, he called a car service, descended on Manhattan, bought $3,000 worth of toys and Christmas lights and opened a Yahoo! store. Before his parents got home, he had doubled his money and had orders waiting.

Cohen says he did it while his parents were away because he thought they'd try to talk him out of it, because just a few weeks before he had accepted a credit card for a payment of $1,000 in his first online venture — and the card turned out to be phony.

Three years later Cohen's business has $1.9 million in sales — earning him $425,000 before taxes.

During the first 14 months of his venture, Cohen sold $270,000 worth of merchandise— but the following summer when he was 15 he went away to travel camp and took his eye off the business. On his Web site he offered a 50-foot rolled, flat hose for $20. While he was at camp for six weeks thousands of orders came in and were put on backorder. When Cohen returned he rushed the items out to customers only to find out that the hoses were defective. He had to give customers' money back while he waited for a manufacturer's refund. Even worse, the item had been left online all summer and had racked up $43,000 in ad charges through a per-click charge. He took care of what needed to be done and has gone on with his online business.

His advice for success: "You've got to do what you love."

— adapted from "The Merchant of Bay Ridge," by Phyllis Berman, in Forbes

Stephen King gives his Top 10 list to graduates

At a commencement speech this year, Stephen King issued a Top 10 list to graduating seniors urging them to remember to hug and kiss the people who had helped them get to where they already are in life, to be voracious readers, and to give away one-tenth of what they make during their lifetimes.

King, a lifelong resident of Maine, also urged the students to make their careers in his beloved state. As a matter of fact, his last four points on his Top 10 list were: Stay in Maine, stay in Maine, stay in Maine and stay in Maine. King lives near Bangor, Maine. — adapted from www.bostonherald.com

Experts warn that Southern style diets can cause strokes, heart problems

Southern-style diets worry health experts because while the types of food in a typical Southern diet are not a concern themselves, the way they are prepared adds lots of unnecessary fat and calories and could be the reason that residents of Southern regions suffer more strokes and heart problems.

Concern for the way some Southern communities eat started in 1962, when a study showed that people living in North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia were suffering disproportionately from high stroke death rates. Now the area of highest concern has shifted to the Mississippi Delta region.

Health officials from the Centers for Disease Control and other agencies have spent thousands of dollars on grants to promote healthy eating, even sending nutritionists in to educate the public in the South. These experts teach locals how to prepare Southern-style foods in healthier ways, such as reducing the amount of frying and fat used. But traditional Southern cooks often complain that changing the way the food is cooked also reduces flavor. Frying has long been a favorite Southern way of preparing food, the region seems to have latched on to frying long ago because it was a quick, inexpensive and flavorful way to cook food. Frying didn't heat up homes as much because it was such a fast way of cooking. But today's health conscious experts are striving to help find alternative preparation methods that will improve the health of the people who love to eat Southern regional cooking. — adapted from the Aetna IntelliHealth Web site

Plant-based diets lower 'bad' cholesterol more effectively

If you want to lower your LDL, your "bad" cholesterol, and you're on a low-fat diet, the type of diet you choose to follow can make a big difference in results. A recent study by the Stanford University School of Medicine confirmed that a low-fat diet rich in fruits, vegetables and whole grains is more effective in lowering LDL than low fat diets that do not focus on these foods.

What exactly does this mean? It means that when you eat spinach salad, egg and oatmeal-carrot cookies, it's healthier for you—heartwise—than eating lean beef, asparagus and low-fat chocolate chip cookies. That holds true even when both meals are equal in amounts of saturated fats and cholesterol. The findings are from a study that compared results from a conventional low-fat diet and one that was heavily plant based. The conventional diet lowered LDL by 4.6 percent; the plant-based diet lowered LDL by 9.4 percent. —adapted from the Nutrition Horizon Web site

The hitchhiker

A hitchhiker caught a ride. As soon as the hitchhiker sat down in the front seat the driver floored the gas pedal and drove right through a red light.

Frightened, the hitchhiker said, “You oughtn’t do that—it’s dangerous.”

The driver looked over at the new passenger and said earnestly, “Why, that’s the way my brother always drives.”

They continued on and when they came to the next traffic light, it was red, and the driver didn’t as much as pretend to slow down. He barreled right through the intersection. Other cars slammed on their brakes to keep from hitting the red-light-running car.

By this time the hitchhiker was starting to lose his temper, “What are you trying to do—kill us? You’re driving like a maniac.”

Again, the driver answered in a sincere fashion and said, “My brother always drives exactly like this.”

They continued down the road, and as they approached the next traffic light, it turned green just as they were about to go through it. Suddenly, the driver slammed on the brakes and stopped the car immediately.

Beside himself, the hitchhiker said, “Why on earth are you driving like this. Why are you running all the red lights and stopping on green?”

The driver looked at the hitchhiker and said: “My brother might be coming through.” — adapted from “Bad driver;” as told by Ivan Amburgey, in Laughter in Appalachia, by Loyal Jones and Billy Edd Wheeler

The sawmill

There was once a sawmill worker who bent down, got too close to the saw and cut his ear off. The ear fell down into the pile of sawdust and disappeared.

The worker got down into the sawdust pit and started scratching around looking for his ear.

I walked by and saw my worker in the pit and I asked, “What you looking for?”

The worker said, “I cut my ear off and I’m down here looking for it.”

“Well, hang on,” I said. “I’ll come down and help you.” I got down into the pit and started feeling around in the sawdust and I found the ear. “I got it,” I called out. “Here it is.”

The worker took hold of the ear and looked at it closely, then he threw it back down in the sawdust. “Better keep on looking,” he said. “Mine had a pencil behind it.” — adapted from “Wrong ear;” as told by Glen Baker, in Laughter in Appalachia, by Loyal Jones and Billy Edd Wheeler
