PARADISE ISLAND UPDATE

Pat Walker, Association President

I have only one thing to say about the month of August: B-O-R-I-N-G!! Actually, I should probably add one more thing: H-O-T!!! Glad it is in the rear view mirror and autumn is on the horizon.

We traditionally host a pool party and BBQ on Labor Day, but the consensus this year was to let everyone swim on their own and just have an easy pot luck dinner afterward.....so that's what we will do. It's still too hot to stand over the grill to cook burgers, so the team opted for Sloppy Joe's along with whatever sides people bring. There is a signup form on the bulletin board, so if you're coming, let us know. Also it is extremely helpful if you indicate what side dish you plan to contribute to avoid multiple people bringing the same item. As always, bring your place setting, beverage of choice, and (optional) 50/50 raffle money. Non Association members are welcome – please do sign up, and in lieu of a food donation there is a $5 fee which you pay at the door.

About the pool – please be responsible and put down the umbrella when you leave even if the person before you failed to do so and it was up when you got there. When umbrellas get wind damaged it is difficult to get them replaced if funding is not already included in ELS' approved budget.

We haven't had a Hot Dog Night in forever, so let's schedule one – how about Saturday, September 23. The Association provides the hot dogs, buns, condiments and paper goods. Attendees pitch in $1/ donation; bring your beverage and an hors d'oeuvre to share. It's actually a mini-pot luck but much more informal. No sign up form – just show up and spend a casual evening hanging with friends.

Hey bingo players, here's the news you've been waiting for – weekly bingo will commence on Thursday, September 21 @ 7PM in Park 1 Clubhouse – everyone welcome. Bingo boards are 50 cents each, play as many as you like; monetary prizes are nothing to write home about but it beats watching TV. All the money from the sale of boards is given out in prizes. We do appreciate donations for the half-time treats, and don't forget about the $5 raffle drawings..... wahoo!

For Park 1, the first monthly Association Meeting of the season will be next month on Saturday, October 7. Everyone in Park 1 is invited to attend, however, bylaws state that only paid members can vote on issues. This meeting is a good way to get better acquainted with your neighbors and to stay apprised of issues affecting Park 1 and the HOA. Coffee & Donuts at 8:30AM, meetings start promptly at 9:00AM.

The Association sponsors an annual White Elephant/Community Sale on the last Saturday in January. Prior to that date we collect items in good repair that residents no longer use and are willing to donate. Profit from the sale goes to the Association and is used for clubhouse supplies and entertainment events. We accept most household items but there are some restrictions. Since we are no longer young and strong, we don't accept heavy furniture, and in keeping with health and safety regulations, no mattresses or bed pillows, and no TVs. We no longer accept clothing as donated items are often damaged or stained, and for those in saleable condition the income does not justify the time involved to sort, fold and categorize items, so please consider donating clothing to a charity. ELS will not allow donated items to be placed in the clubhouse, so contact either me or Lei Crance and we will schedule a time to meet you at the storage garage; our phone numbers are in the Park Directory. Thanks in advance for your donations to this program.

Happy Labor Day – in all probability there will be no trash pickup – check for an ELS notice on this. Have a great September – and stay safe and healthy.

HONOR OUR HEROES ON PATRIOTS DAY – SEPTEMBER 11

LAKE HAVEN HOME OWNERS ASSOCIATION

The annual rent increase letter from ELS will arrive prior to month-end. The HOA Board of Directors has appointed a committee to negotiate the announced contract terms with ELS, they are: Kitty Buttress, Lei Crance, Bob Kawasaki, Grace MacDonald, Pat Walker.

For residents who purchased a previously owned unit in 2023, you will not be included in any agreement the HOA negotiates for the year 2024. Your 2024 rent amount was determined at the time you signed your rental agreement with ELS. You were covered by the prior owner's rental agreement through December 2023. You signed an Assumption Agreement which increases your 2024 rent to market rate. Should the HOA succeed in negotiating a multi-year contract, you will be included in that contract effective January 2025.

Lake Haven continues to experience multiple instances of illegal dumping. ONLY household trash is allowed in the dumpsters. Residents are responsible to take construction debris, furniture, mattresses, electronic items, etc., to an off-site location for disposal or recycling. Because illegal dumping has resulted in significant increases to our trash charges, and multiple attempts to curb the abuse have been unsuccessful, cameras have been installed to identify offenders who will then be cited for illegal dumping by the Pinellas County Sheriff's Department.

Because of its deteriorating condition, the ELS Regional Manager has mandated that the Park 3 storage shed be removed.

The ELS office recently tested a call/text system to notify residents of emergency situations such as water outages. This new system should greatly improve resident satisfaction.

The HOA Board meets on the 3rd Thursday of each month at 11:00AM with the Park Manager. To prepare for that meeting, the board meets with residents from 10:15-10:45AM in the Park 1 Clubhouse to discuss their concerns. The resident meeting is open to all home owners and the HOA board invites your participation.

The hitchhiker

A hitchhiker caught a ride. As soon as the hitchhiker sat down in the front seat the driver floored the gas pedal and drove right through a red light.

Frightened, the hitchhiker said, “You oughtn’t do that—it’s dangerous.”

The driver looked over at the new passenger and said earnestly, “Why, that’s the way my brother always drives.”

They continued on and when they came to the next traffic light, it was red, and the driver didn’t as much as pretend to slow down. He barreled right through the intersection. Other cars slammed on their brakes to keep from hitting the red-light-running car.

By this time the hitchhiker was starting to lose his temper, “What are you trying to do—kill us? You’re driving like a maniac.”

Again, the driver answered in a sincere fashion and said, “My brother always drives exactly like this.”

They continued down the road, and as they approached the next traffic light, it turned green just as they were about to go through it. Suddenly, the driver slammed on the brakes and stopped the car immediately.

Beside himself, the hitchhiker said, “Why on earth are you driving like this. Why are you running all the red lights and stopping on green?”

The driver looked at the hitchhiker and said: “My brother might be coming through.” — adapted from “Bad driver;” as told by Ivan Amburgey, in Laughter in Appalachia, by Loyal Jones and Billy Edd Wheeler

The sawmill

There was once a sawmill worker who bent down, got too close to the saw and cut his ear off. The ear fell down into the pile of sawdust and disappeared.

The worker got down into the sawdust pit and started scratching around looking for his ear.

I walked by and saw my worker in the pit and I asked, “What you looking for?”

The worker said, “I cut my ear off and I’m down here looking for it.”

“Well, hang on,” I said. “I’ll come down and help you.” I got down into the pit and started feeling around in the sawdust and I found the ear. “I got it,” I called out. “Here it is.”

The worker took hold of the ear and looked at it closely, then he threw it back down in the sawdust. “Better keep on looking,” he said. “Mine had a pencil behind it.” — adapted from “Wrong ear;” as told by Glen Baker, in Laughter in Appalachia, by Loyal Jones and Billy Edd Wheeler

A city story

A man goes into a bank in San Francisco and walks up to the teller. “I’d like to borrow $5,000 dollars for a business trip to Europe,” the man said.

“Fine,” said the clerk, “but we’ll need some collateral if we’re going to give you a loan.”

The man handed the clerk a set of keys and said, “You can keep my Rolls Royce as collateral.”

The bank clerk was surprised, but the car title checked out and when everything was verified as legitimate, he gave the man a $5,000 loan for his trip. The teller then sent another worker out to move the car into the bank’s parking garage for safekeeping.

Two weeks later the man returned to the bank, repaid the $5,000 loan—plus $15.41 in interest.

The clerk said to the man, “I don’t understand. I did some checking while you were gone—and I know you’re a millionaire, why did you have to borrow $5,000?”

The millionaire smiled knowingly and said, “Where else am I going to find parking for two weeks in San Francisco for $15.41?” — adapted from the Clean Funny Web site

A crafty entrepreneur

A little boy was selling lemonade at a stand. At the front of the stand he had a sign that said LEMONADE 55 CENTS: ALL YOU CAN DRINK.

A woman who was passing by thought about it, and even though the cup the boy stocked at his stand looked small, she decided to buy a lemonade since it was only 55 cents.

The boy handed her a cup and filled it up and she drank the entire contents straight down and then held her cup out for a refill. However, the boy firmly shook his head no to her request.

“But it says ‘All you can drink’ on your sign for 55 cents,” the woman protested.

“That’s right,” the boy said. “It’s all you can drink.” — adapted from the Clean Funny Web site

Too many people spend money they haven’t earned, to buy things they don’t want, to impress people they don’t like.

Pick the right wine shop

- Stay away from hot shops. If you walk into a wine store in the summer and it's not air conditioned, experts suggest you walk out. The heat “cooks” the wine and ruins it.
- Be wary of wine bottles displayed in an upright position. Wines should be laid on their sides to keep corks moistened. A dry cork allows air into the bottle, which ruins the wine.
- Look for deals. Look for wide ranges in price. Wine pros think stores should offer as many price choices as varieties.
- Don't get hung up on scores from Wine Spectator and other publications. Ask the shop staff what wines they prefer. Talking to someone who has actually tasted the wine rather than just read about it is the rule to follow here.
- Choose wine stores with knowledgeable staff. If workers don't know what they're selling, go somewhere else.
- Buy from a wine shop that makes you excited to try what they recommend. Also, make sure your wine shop has people who know how to couple wine with food.
- Go to a wine shop that asks you the right questions. If staff asks you questions that are too general, like “What do you want this wine for?” and neglect asking you “Is this wine for a dinner at home or a dinner party?” “What will the menu be?” “Is this a gift?” or “How long until this wine will be drunk?” go some-where else.
- If the wine store you frequent is dusty, consider choosing another place to shop. Wine cellars can be dusty, but modern American wine shops need to show they care—and dust usually means neglect.

— adapted from “10 tips for finding the right wine shop,” by Bill Daley in the Chicago Tribune

How a 17 year old started a thriving online business

At the age of 14, Joseph Cohen started his online venture. As a matter of fact, he waited until his parents went out of town for the weekend, but instead of throwing a party a la Risky Business, he called a car service, descended on Manhattan, bought $3,000 worth of toys and Christmas lights and opened a Yahoo! store. Before his parents got home, he had doubled his money and had orders waiting.

Cohen says he did it while his parents were away because he thought they'd try to talk him out of it, because just a few weeks before he had accepted a credit card for a payment of $1,000 in his first online venture — and the card turned out to be phony.

Three years later Cohen's business has $1.9 million in sales — earning him $425,000 before taxes.

During the first 14 months of his venture, Cohen sold $270,000 worth of merchandise— but the following summer when he was 15 he went away to travel camp and took his eye off the business. On his Web site he offered a 50-foot rolled, flat hose for $20. While he was at camp for six weeks thousands of orders came in and were put on backorder. When Cohen returned he rushed the items out to customers only to find out that the hoses were defective. He had to give customers' money back while he waited for a manufacturer's refund. Even worse, the item had been left online all summer and had racked up $43,000 in ad charges through a per-click charge. He took care of what needed to be done and has gone on with his online business.

His advice for success: "You've got to do what you love."

— adapted from "The Merchant of Bay Ridge," by Phyllis Berman, in Forbes

Stephen King gives his Top 10 list to graduates

At a commencement speech this year, Stephen King issued a Top 10 list to graduating seniors urging them to remember to hug and kiss the people who had helped them get to where they already are in life, to be voracious readers, and to give away one-tenth of what they make during their lifetimes.

King, a lifelong resident of Maine, also urged the students to make their careers in his beloved state. As a matter of fact, his last four points on his Top 10 list were: Stay in Maine, stay in Maine, stay in Maine and stay in Maine. King lives near Bangor, Maine. — adapted from www.bostonherald.com

Making gold from your life

Do you have an idea about something you want to do—something you want to start—but you don’t really feel like you have the know-how to do it. That seems to be a problem that is cropping up more and more for human beings. We just don’t feel like we can do it, whatever it is. Maybe it’s because we’ve gotten so far away from the day when people had to do virtually everything for themselves—needed a blanket to stay warm during the winter, someone in the household had to make it. Needed a fence to keep deer out of the garden—someone had to build it. But as technology takes us further and further from that type of self-sufficiency, it is as if human beings are losing the ability to believe in themselves—in our innate ability to solve problems with the creativity we are all born with.

Remember the words of Nelson Mandela: “Our deepest fear is not that we are inadequate. Our deepest fear is that we are powerful beyond measure. It is our light, not our darkness that most frightens us. We ask ourselves, who am I to be brilliant, gorgeous, talented and fabulous. Actually, who are you not to be?” — adapted from Waiting for the Mountain to Move, by Charles Handy

How to run a race well

There was a Special Olympics race and eight children glowed in anticipation of the event. Excitedly the children all took their places and got ready for the start of the race.

A starter gave them the signal and shouted, “Get on your mark, get set—goooo!” And the children sprinted out. Soon one girl clearly took the lead with the other children running to catch up.

However, back in the pack of runners one boy, who had gotten off to a slower start, tripped and fell. He began to cry on the racetrack. He whimpered and tears spilled down his cheeks.

The leader of the race, a girl with Down syndrome heard her opponents anguish—and though she was clearly set to win the race she stopped and ran back to the boy. When she reached him, she gingerly dropped down and gave him a kiss on the knee and then she wiped away his tears.

When the other runners saw what was going on they also turned around and ran back. Together they pulled the boy up—then they set off to finish the race they had begun.

As the children approached the finish line it was hard to find a dry eye among the spectators. The runners came down the final stretch toward the finish line—with their arms linked. And each one of them was absolutely delighted to be together. —adapted from Relationships of Grace, by Chris Karcher
