Shady Lane Oaks September 2023 information

DebTompkins – Social Director – sloactivities@hotmail.com – 610-357-4148

Hello Residents,

Can you believe the year is pretty much over, crazy how time flies! We are looking to the next year and waiting anxiously to find out what projects we can tackle for each community. Always keep in mind, if you have a wish or suggestion, we will welcome anything you have for us. Come on by the office, pop a squat and we'd be happy to hear your thoughts. The office staff are available all week long to assist you in any way we can.

Big shout out again to all the residents that are working hard on their homes. If you need more time for home improvements, for whatever reason, just let us know and we will work to accommodate your request and help ease your mind. Our yards of the month for November were Lot 125 in the Oaks and Lot 1078 in the Village, great job and cheers to you both.

If you have company coming to stay for a visit this month, please let us know if they will be using the overflow parking at the clubhouses, just so we know what cars belong to whom. Keep in mind while seeing friends and family that we have our four-brand new beautiful homes for sale at $184,900 or for rental at $1,795 plus utilities. One household already was able to get $2,500 for referring someone for a sale, we would love for more residents to take advantage of this great offer and be $2,500 richer.

Lastly, Season's Greetings to all of you and your families and we hope you have a wonderful holiday season. Please keep our neighbors and friends, in each community, also in our thoughts and hopes that they too have a happy and healthy new year.

Thanks very much for being here!

Shady Lane Staff

Do we really want to have the Midas touch?

In modern times, the name Midas is associated with someone who has such good luck that everything seems to go his or her way—and they become rich without even trying. But the original meaning of the King Midas story was very different.

Midas was the king of Phrygia, according to Edith Hamilton’s classic book Mythology. Phrygia was the land of roses, and Midas maintained large, beautiful rose gardens near his palace.

One day, the old man Silenus wandered off from Bacchus’ caravan because he was intoxicated. The rotund and aging drunkard was found passed out in a bower of roses near the palace. The servants, having a little fun, bound him with garlands of flowers and crowned him with a wreath of roses and took him stumbling and looking ridiculous to King Midas as a great joke.

Midas welcomed Silenus and entertained him for two days. Then the king led the old man back to Bacchus, the god of wine and intoxication, where he belonged. Bacchus was so glad to get Silenus back that he told Midas that whatever wish he made would come true.

Without giving the matter any thought, Midas immediately wished that whatever he touched would turn to gold. Bacchus, being a god, of course, immediately saw the folly of the king’s wish, but granted it anyway.

Then Midas sat down at his table to take his dinner, but as he lifted his food to his lips he saw that it had become a lump of metal. Frightened, and beginning to suffer from hunger and thirst, he was forced to hurry off to Bacchus again and beg him to take the favor he had been granted back. Bacchus instructed the king to wash in the source of the river Pactolus and he would lose the fatal gift. The king did so, and that is why, they say, that gold was found in the bed of that river.

And what are we to take from this tale? Midas was not able to profit from his riches because he had committed a folly, which was just as fatal as sin. Even though the poor king meant no harm, he had failed to use his intelligence, and because of that he faced certain doom, had he not begged the gods to rid him of what he had asked for.

The story tells us that failing to use our intelligence can bring us to ruin just as quickly as wrongdoing. That being intoxicated with the so-called “riches” of our world can bring us down quickly, and the best course of action is to stop and think about the consequences of what we are about to ask or wish for.

Only in L.A....

A man and a woman met at a Hollywood party and began to get to know each other through the usual introductory chitchat.

“Are you in the business?” asked the woman.

“Yes,” said the man. “I’m a stunt man. You know. I drive cars off bridges, I jump from cliffs, I fall out of airplanes... things like that.”

“Wow!” said the woman. “How do you manage to stay alive?”

“I wait tables in Santa Monica,” he said. As retold from Good Clean Jokes

Best excuses when caught sleeping at your desk

1. They told me at the blood bank this might happen.
  2. This is just a 15 - minute power-nap like they raved about in the last time-management course you sent me to.
  3. Whew! Guess I left the top off the liquid paper.
  4. I wasn't sleeping! I was meditating on the mission statement and envisioning a new paradigm!
  5. This is one of the seven habits of highly effective people.
  6. I was testing the keyboard for drool resistance.
  7. Actually, I'm doing a "Stress Level Elimination Exercise Plan" (SLEEP) I learned at the last mandatory seminar you made me attend.
  8. I was doing a highly specific yoga exercise to relieve work-related stress. Are you discriminatory about people who practice yoga.
  9. Darn! Why did you interrupt me? I had almost figured out a solution to our biggest problem.
  10. The coffee machine is broken...
  11. Someone must've put decaf in the wrong pot.
  12. Boy, that cold medicine I took last night just won't wear off.
  13. Ah, the unique and unpredictable circadian rhythms of the workaholic.
  14. Wasn't sleeping. Was trying to pick up contact lens without hands.

Staying fit in old age keeps the brain sharp, study finds

A study published in the journal Neurology suggests that keeping physically fit in old age can also keep the brain functioning normally.

“Our study suggests that being physically active in old age could keep the brain fit,” says study author Boukje M. van Gelder.

Physical activity can improve blood flow to the brain and in so doing reduce the risk of dementia, stroke and cognitive decline. Activity could stimulate the growth of nerve cells in the hippocampus, the region of the brain involved in memory function. This could help the brain prevent further deterioration, because there is a “reserve” of nerve cells available.

The study included data on 295 men between the ages of 70 and 90, born between 1900 and 1920. The study began in 1990, and the men were tracked for physical activity and mental agility over a 10-year period.

Researchers found:

- Men who reduced their physical activity by an hour or more were 2.6 times more likely to suffer cognitive decline than men who maintained their activity levels.
- Men who performed their physical activity at a lower intensity over a 10-year period were 3.6 times more likely to suffer cognitive decline than those who maintained intensity level.

Researchers prove learning keeps brain physically fit

Researchers at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology have finally proved that when it comes to brainpower the lowdown is “use it or lose it.”

According to DrWeil.com’s Weekly Bulletin, rats that were put into a two-chambered box and then learned to avoid a darkened area through receiving unpleasant foot shocks exhibited strengthened connections among synapses in the hippocampus.

Weil says that even though this learning/brain health connection has been suspected for decades—that this evidence actually shows the physical change in the brain when learning takes place.

This is an important piece of evidence that learning keeps the brain physically strong.

"...I am so happy with my new windows...I'd like to commend your work crew. Earbie and Larry were fantastic! I couldn't believe the clean-up EVERYDAY! The whole job took just a week even with all the rain delays. I would and WILL highly recommend your company to my friends and neighbors. Of course I won't need to say a word – the house is doing all the talking! Thank you so much for my beautiful new house."

How to throw a great party

Throwing a party is often a matter of the right combination of providing your guests relaxation and enough structure that they are able to enjoy themselves.

A savvy hostess knows that there are many ways to do this. Here are a few tips for throwing a winning party:

- Set the tone. If you really want everyone to relax and have fun make sure that you are completely organized, but, according to party-throwing expert Katie Brown, you might want to answer the door in your robe with your hair wrapped up in a towel to show people you are and getting ready to enjoy the evening without stressing out. Then go change for the party.
- Whatever you're going to serve, have it ready to go, and know how you're going to serve it. If it's sit down, you'll want to have the first course on the table before you call your guests in to sit down. If it's a buffet, round up some light help from your guests to do last minute preparations—they'll be relieved to be called upon—just don't ask too much of them.
- Accept all gifts graciously, but don't feel pressure to use what people bring immediately if you already have something else planned. Make sure you thank the person and emphasize you can't wait to try it tomorrow. If someone brings flowers, put them in a vase, but don't destroy the look of your table or room by giving them a central location (unless you want to and feel they will look good).
- Keep people talking and the conversation rolling. Don't let one person dictate what everyone talks about. You are the hostess and you can politely interject if someone takes over inappropriately or focuses on an inappropriate subject. Listen to what the person is saying and find a place to interject and segue into a new subject.
- See people out when they are ready to go, but don't linger at the door and ignore your other guests. You want to make sure everyone leaves feeling you truly enjoyed their company and that they added to the uniqueness of the evening.

The next time you panic — think on this

The origin of our word panic is derived from the Greek god Pan. According to the Merriam-Webster New Book of Word Histories, this lusty and musically gifted god was also known for giving great shouts that instilled fear into giants as they battled the gods. Pan was worshipped in Athens because it was believed that he instilled fear into the hearts of the Persians causing them to flee the Battle of Marathon. And that is where we get our word and idea of panic — any sudden and groundless fear.

You can have everything in life that you want if you just give enough other people what they want.
— Zig Ziglar

Some words to keep you hanging in...

When you're having a bad day, it might do your heart good to embrace the wise words of the beloved Benjamin Franklin (Bite-size Franklin, compiled by John P. Holms and Karin Baji). Here they are:

Diligence is the mother of good luck.
And
Little strokes, Fell great oaks.

Is your self-image ruling your life?

Deepak Chopra, in The Book of Secrets, says to be ruled by self-image is to exclude many feelings that we don't believe jibe with our imagined selves. This, he speculates, keeps reality at bay. Chopra says you are no longer ruled by self-image when:

- You let yourself feel what you feel.
- You stop being offended by things.
- You stop worrying about how a situation makes you look.
- You stop excluding people you feel inferior or superior to.
- You stop worrying about what people are thinking of you.
- You stop obsessing over money, possessions and status.
- You no longer feel the urge to defend your opinions.

Moving forward—without looking back

Fear can often get the best of even the very brave. Here's a story adapted from Tales for Change by Margaret Parkin, from whence comes the expression "burning the boats." It's a powerful story of facing change—and learning the lesson that sometimes it's best to push forward without looking back:

Cortez, the explorer, was born in Spain in 1485. At the age of 14, he made his way out into the world to study law—but his true ambition was to become a conqueror and explorer.

Cortez had many adventures in his twenties and thirties, and eventually he joined forces with another explorer, Diego Velasquez. Together the explorers hoped to achieve their goal of conquering the Aztec city of Tenochitlan.

Cortez set off with about 500 soldiers in the year 1519 and landed at a spot known as Veracruz. Soon the explorer realized there was talk amongst his men of turning back to Cuba—rather than facing the potentially hazardous journey ahead. The soldiers, in order to conquer Tenochitlan, would have to navigate 200 miles of jungle and swampland before attacking the city, which was surrounded by water.

Cortez knew that he was facing a possible mutiny, and so took the bold action of having all of his own party's boats burnt.

Cortez forced the men to choose to fight or die by taking away all hope of retreat.

Cortez's party went on to fight the Aztecs and conquer the fortress city.
