Hello,

I hope everyone is enjoying this beautiful Spring. We are so happy to report that residents are doing so much work outside, it is hard for the office to keep track of it all. We are so appreciative of the effort and both parks are looking better and better. Yard of the month is Lot 184 in the Oaks and Lot 1002 in the Village, excellent job to both. Inspections are done at both parks, so we are going to start all over again. If you missed completing repairs the first time around, we will be looking to speak with you and find out what is delaying these projects from getting done. Give us a call and we will see what we can do to assist you, especially if you have had a life changing event, you may qualify for some help. We are at 727-531-3118, my email is holly_butler@equitylifestyle.com and Sarah's email is sarah_rinas@equitylifestyle.com.

Residents have asked me to bring a few things to everyone's attention. The big one is "smoking at the pools" and being considerate of others. The Oaks has a designated smoking area at the corner of the pool deck and our smokers are expected to only smoke there. If residents at the Village would like, we can do the same thing there, just give me your feedback or talk to your HOA members. Smoking while in the pool is not allowed. Please be considerate that some residents may have a sensitivity to smoke, or they do not want to smell it. Smoking areas are designed so that the smoker is represented, but also the non-smoker is too, so they can choose to move away from that area and still enjoy the pool. That is fair for everyone, don't you agree? Other reasons that residents are not at the pool anymore are inappropriate PDA, while in the pool, and constant gossiping/complaining. I am sure most did not realize that these things can be bothersome to some, but now you do know. Let's make the pool area welcome for all who live here, especially since we will be getting new furniture in the coming months.

Lastly, I was asked to point out that we should not be parking directly across from other cars on the street. Since we have been working to get cars off the sidewalks so residents can walk down the street and not in the road, it was asked that I share this concern. We want to make sure any emergency vehicles would be able to get down any of our streets at any given time.

If you have something you would like me to share with everyone, please feel free to let me know.

Thank you for being here!

Holly, Sarah, Jorge, and Eric

The delightfully anguished English of Sam Goldwyn

According to Gene Shalit in his book Great Hollywood Wit, Samuel Goldwyn was a perfectionist—who had, ahem, an unusual way with words. The legendary moviemaker had a plethora of great ideas, and he always wanted to hire the best talent available. But one area where his attention to detail was wanting was his language usage. He just couldn't seem to get it right, and he became famous for what those who knew and loved him came to call "Goldwynisms." Here are a few examples:

- An aide once said that he thought a screenplay was too caustic, Goldwyn replied, "Who cares about the expenses?"
- While making a movie, Goldwyn told his staff to "spare no expense to make everything as economical as possible."
- Goldwyn was told that more Indians were needed as extras for a Western he was making. "Get some more from the reservoir," he replied.
- Following a preview Goldwyn said: "It will create an excitement that will sweep the country like wildflowers."
- Goldwyn liked to get the opinions of others and one day, while inviting employees to do just that, he said, "I don't want any yes-men around me. I want everybody to tell me the truth even if it costs them their jobs."

On the art of being a man of few words

According to Anecdote.com, Calvin Coolidge was well-known for being a taciturn man. One night, over dinner, one of his guests who knew his reputation for keeping mum tried to stir up a conversation with him. Trying to draw him out she said, "I have made a bet, Mr. Coolidge, that I can get more than two words out of you."

Coolidge replied coolly, "You lose."

Kids say the darnedest things

Joke retold from Laughter Incorporated by Cerf Bennett

A young girl waited eagerly for her father to come home from work, as she did every day. When her father walked in, he grabbed her, threw her in the air and asked her how her day at school had been. The daughter started her recitation reporting on a neighbor's problem child. "The teacher says she's a jubilant delinquent," she said.

Now that's depressing

In honor of the birthday of Jack Paar—May 1, 1918.

Oscar Levant was famous for his music, movie appearances and having a wildly self-destructive personality — even for Hollywood. He was known as a brilliant wit and a gifted concert pianist. Levant popularized the notion of being “neurotic.” He appeared on national television on The Jack Paar Show and delighted the audience with his dark wit. According to A Talent for Genius: The Life and Times of Oscar Levant by Sam Kashner and Nancy Schoenberger, when he and Paar began to discuss his experiences as a mental patient Levant said, “I was thrown out of one mental hospital because I depressed the patients.” Later he said, “There is a thin line between genius and insanity, and I have erased that line.”

The audience loved him. But some viewers and critics thought he crossed the line of good taste by talking about his mental illnesses on television.

Mind your manners

According to The Wit and Humor of Oscar Wilde, edited by Alvin Redman, Oscar Wilde was much more concerned about manners than about morals. Wilde was known for his kindness to others and rarely spoke unkindly—but he would correct what he thought were poor manners exhibited by others. Once an enthusiastic noblewoman came up and slapped Wilde on the back while he was talking.

“Why, Oscar,” she said, “You are getting fatter and fatter!”

Without looking at the woman Wilde said, “And you are getting ruder and ruder.”

The fastidious diner

Joke retold from Laughter Incorporated by Cerf Bennett

A man entered a diner and ordered a steak. The man was well-known for being a fastidious diner, and when his steak arrived he became enraged and complained to the waiter that the steak had not been prepared the way he had ordered it. The man had the waiter take the steak back to the kitchen. Soon the waiter came trotting back with the man's steak. The waiter reported that the chef said to tell him that the steak was perfectly fine just the way it was and he would not prepare another.

“Is that what he says, ay,” the angry diner said. “Well, you just take that steak back to the chef and tell him to ram it down his own throat if he likes it so much!”

But in a few moments the waiter was back with the same steak and said “I'm sorry, sir, but the chef says there are two steaks and four lamb chops ahead of you.”

Are you at risk for a stroke?

According to the American Heart Association and the American Stroke Association, risk factors are traits and lifestyle habits that increase the risk of disease. Studies have verified that most of the risk factors for strokes can be modified, treated or controlled. Some of the most important things to know are the warning signs of a stroke. They are:

- Sudden weakness or numbness of the arm, leg or face—especially when it occurs on one side of the body.
- Sudden confusion, or trouble understanding or speaking.
- Problems with vision, in one or both eyes.
- Sudden trouble walking, dizziness, loss of balance or coordination.
- Sudden, severe headache without a known cause.

If you, or someone you know is experiencing symptoms, call 911 immediately. Lost time can be devastating in stroke treatment.

If you want to begin the work of reducing your risk for stroke, a health care professional can help you devise a safe and effective plan. The following is a list of risk factors for stroke that can be controlled or treated: high blood pressure, tobacco use, diabetes mellitus, carotid or other artery disease, atrial fibrillation, other heart disease, transient ischemic attacks or “warning strokes,” certain blood disorders, sickle cell disease, high blood cholesterol, physical inactivity and obesity, excessive alcohol use, illegal drug use.

Slowing the effects of aging

According to the Discovery Health Web site, if you want to be a lively 80 or 90 year old some day—then you need to start following an anti-aging program. Here are some of the recommendations:

- Follow a low-fat, high complex carbohydrate diet. Eat five servings of fruits and vegetables and three servings of whole grains every day. Drink five to eight glasses of water per day. Derive only 30 percent to 35 percent of your diet from fat—20 percent of which should be unsaturated (examples are 1 percent milk, canola and olive oil.) Fifteen percent of your diet should be protein, with the rest having an emphasis on complex carbohydrates (examples are wild rice, whole wheat bread and oatmeal).
- Develop and follow a regular exercise routine. Regular aerobic exercise will help slow down the aging process, experts say. Strength building is also important. Consult a health professional to adopt a routine that will be right for you. Good exercise programs should help prevent the loss of stamina, strength, balance and bone density.

There are times for plucky behavior and bold action

Knowing when to obey orders is important, especially if you're in the military. Horatio Nelson, the famous British leader and naval hero, was respected greatly by his men, because he showed them respect and led with compassion.

According to the BBC Web site, Nelson was famous for his predilection for bold action—and for occasional disregard of orders. At the Battle of Copenhagen, Nelson refused to acknowledge orders to cease action. In an earlier battle at Calvi in the Mediterranean, Nelson had been wounded and lost sight in his right eye. When he was given the order to cease action in Copenhagen by distant signal, the commander lifted his telescope to his blind eye and claimed he couldn't see the signal. He and his men were victorious.

A brave act wins loyalty

According to the Absolute Nelson Web site, when Horatio Nelson was a schoolboy, the schoolmaster, the Rev. Mr. Jones, had some lovely pears on his desk. His students looked at the pears during the day and wished very much that they could have them. But none of the boys was brave enough to attempt procuring them because they were all afraid they would be caught.

The young Horatio, however came forward and offered to get the pears for the boys. He was not afraid of the consequences of getting caught. And so one night, his anxious schoolmates lowered him from the dormitory by way of a long rope of sheets that had been tied together for the adventure. And though it was a risky endeavor, Horatio boldly claimed the pears as his own and was secretly hauled up into the dormitory again by his mates. But the adventure was apparently all that was important to Horatio. He shared the pears amongst his school friends and did not save even one bite for himself.

"I only took them because every other boy was afraid," Horatio claimed.

The next day a reward of five guineas was offered for the name of the thief who had made off with the master's pears—but by that time Horatio had won the other boys' hearts so completely not one would betray him.

Why is bubble gum pink?

If you're the kind of person who ponders the great questions in life, (Who am I? Where did I come from? What am I doing here? And why is bubble gum pink?) you'll enjoy chomping into some gum trivia. Here are some fun facts about chewing gum provided by the National Association of Chewing Gum Manufacturers:

- The first patent for chewing gum was issued to a Vernon, Ohio, dentist named William F. Semple.
- William Wrigley Jr. was a pioneer in branding and promoting goods through advertising in the early 1900s. His spearmint gum became a best seller.
- U.S. military personnel popularized chewing gum during World War II by giving it away as gifts in Europe.
- Cinnamon, spearmint and peppermint are some of the most popular flavors of gum today.
- Bubble gum cards were first issued in the 1930s. Pictures varied widely, from war heroes, figures of the Wild West and professional athletes. The Topps Company became famous for offering baseball cards in packs of gum and sponsoring bubble-blowing contests for players.
- The largest bubble-gum bubble ever blown was 23 inches in diameter. It was blown in 1994 by Susan Montgomery Williams in Fresno, Calif.
- You can remove gum that is stuck in hair using peanut butter. It helps disperse the gum from the strands of hair.
- Kids in North America spend about half a billion dollars every year on chewing gum.
- And, finally, bubble gum is pink because it was the only color the inventor had left at the time of invention. The color was accepted or “stuck,” if you will, and today bubble gum is still traditionally pink.

Is it time to lower your standards?

Are your standards unreasonably high? If they are, you may find the need to lower them at some point so that you can make progress on whatever project you are working on. Lowering your standards does not mean that you lower the quality of your work, but instead means that you lower your standards of perfectionism or achievement. Perfectionism or unrealistic goals can debilitate you on the job. When you lower your standards, what you do is say, “All I need to do is this first little thing.” Then do it without hesitation, and it will be likely that you will be on your way to getting things done.

On cleverness

A clever person turns great troubles into little ones and little ones into none at all.
