SCAM ALERT

Romance Scams

www.fbi.gov/how-we-can-help-you/scams-and-safety/common-scams-and-crimes

Romance scams occur when a criminal adopts a fake online identity to gain a victim's affection and trust. The scammer then uses the illusion of a romantic or close relationship to manipulate and/or steal from the victim.

The scammer's intention is to establish a relationship as quickly as possible, endear himself to the victim, and gain trust. Scammers may propose marriage and make plans to meet in person, but that will never happen. Eventually, they will ask for money.

If someone you meet online needs your bank account information to deposit money, they are most likely using your account to carry out other theft and fraud schemes.

Tips for Avoiding Romance Scams:

- Be careful what you post and make public online. Scammers can use details shared on social media and dating sites to better understand and target you.
- Research the person's photo and profile using online searches to see if the image, name, or details have been used elsewhere.
- Go slowly and ask lots of questions.
- Beware if the individual seems too perfect or quickly asks you to leave a dating service or social media site to communicate directly.
- Beware if the individual attempts to isolate you from friends and family or requests inappropriate photos or financial information that could later be used to extort you.
- Beware if the individual promises to meet in person but then always comes up with an excuse why he or she can't. If you haven't met the person after a few months, for whatever reason, you have good reason to be suspicious.
- Never send money to anyone you have only communicated with online or by phone.

Learning to appreciate the ordinary

Author Mitch Albom says that for his book For One More Day, he became fascinated by how people answer this question: If they could spend one more day with a loved one already departed, how would they spend it? What would they do?

Albom says in a piece for Parade, that what he found time and again was that people wanted to spend an ordinary day doing ordinary things with the people they had loved. Almost everyone, he says wanted to tell the person that they loved him or her one more time. Some said they wanted to do the habitual things they always did with the person, such as head to the race-track, or eat in a favorite hamburger joint and talk about old times.

One son wished that he could share knowledge that would have relieved his father from guilt over an incident where the father threw a snowball and accidentally blinded another son. Later, after the father's death, the family learned that the son had a condition that had predisposed him to this happening. He wanted to give his father the gift of lifting his burden.

One man longed for a moment with his son who died in a car accident. He wanted to go for a walk with him in the woods that had been their getaway.

Albom says asking people about this scenario, helped him understand what we yearn for. Often, he says, it's not something exotic or faraway. It's about connection. And realizing that a normal day is some-thing we should all treasure, he says.

A lesson in being bold

Risks make most people uncomfortable. It seems that most humans want security, and when they attempt something out of their comfort zone they wish for something akin to a guarantee that what they are about to try will pay off.

Arthur Gordon, in the Guideposts Pocket Book of Inspiration, says that once, when he had to make a decision, he complained to a friend that he'd go ahead with the thing if he was "sure" he could do it.

His friend, being older and somewhat wiser than Gordon, took out a pen and began to write something down. Then he pushed the piece of paper over to the younger man. It read: Be bold—and mighty forces will come to your aid.

Gordon says it was the best advice he has ever got—ten. These words, he later found out, were from a book by Basil King called The Conquest of Fear, and they had a profound effect on him. He realized that failing was not a problem in his life, but that fear of failure was a big problem. It acted as a limiting factor on what he would even try.

He also recognized that whenever he had jumped in over his head, that he had in fact rose to the occasion and performed well. It didn't seem to matter whether the motivation came from courage or from circumstance.

Boldness then, Gordon surmised, was when you take on more you're sure you can handle. Then the powers that all of people possess are activated, such as increased energy, learning skills, exercising sound judgment, coming up with creative ideas and even enhanced strength and endurance.

Did You Know?

Groundhog Day is actually based on a German superstition? Instead of a groundhog, Germany uses a badger.

Americans spend over 18 billion dollars every year on Valentine's Day!

Jokes to brighten your day:

Why don't scientists trust atoms? Because they make up everything!
Why did the scarecrow win an award? Because he was outstanding in his field!

Why don't skeletons fight each other? They don't have the guts.

What do you call fake spaghetti? An impasta!

Why did the bicycle fall over? Because it was two-tired.

What do you call cheese that isn't yours? Nacho cheese!

Why can't you give Elsa a balloon? Because she will let it go.

What do you get when you cross a snowman and a vampire? Frostbite.

Why did the math book look sad? Because it had too many problems.

What do you call a bear with no teeth? A gummy bear!

Why did the golfer bring two pairs of pants? In case he got a hole in one.

What do you call a fish wearing a crown? A kingfish.

Why did the tomato turn red? Because it saw the salad dressing!

How does a penguin build its house? Igloos it together.

Why don't some couples go to the gym? Because some relationships don't work out.

What do you call a can opener that doesn't work? A can't opener.

Why did the computer go to the doctor? Because it had a virus.

What do you call a snowman with a six-pack? An abdominal snowman.

What do you call a belt made of watches? A waist of time.

On the power of words and their meanings

A policeman on patrol watched the car go zooming by and run right through a four-way stop sign. In response, the policeman turned on his light and pulled the motorist over. When the policeman began to write the ticket, the motorist protested. "What are you doing?" he said. "You can't give me a ticket for that!"

"Why not?" the officer asked.

"It's true, I didn't stop," the motorist admitted. "But I did slow down — and that's almost the same."

"But you didn't stop," the officer said. "And the sign clearly says 'STOP.'"

"But it was clear. Nothing was coming," the motorist replied.

The officer then proceeded to pull out his baton and start to hit the motorist.

"What are you doing?" yelled the motorist in surprise.

"Do you want me to slow down or STOP?" asked the officer. — As retold from Eric's Clean Jokes

A woman wrote a letter to her husband: Dear Husband, I have decided to plant a garden this year. I will be putting the plants out directly. When do you think the best time to plant would be?"

The prisoner, knowing that the prison guards read all the mail replied to his wife: "Whatever you do. Do not touch the back garden. That is where I hid all of the money."

In about a week, the prisoner received another letter from his wife: "Dear Husband, You will not believe what has happened. Some men came with shovels to the house. They dug up the whole back garden."

The prisoner wrote another letter back: "Dear Wife, Now is the best time to plant the garden." —As retold From Eric's Clean Jokes

The trials of customer service

TECH: Hello, Friendly Internet. May I help you?

CUSTOMER: Oh, hello young man. I was wondering if you offer online banking?

TECH: We're an Internet service provider, ma'am. You can certainly use our service to connect to online banking.

CUSTOMER: What do I need to do that?

TECH: You just need the modem in your computer. That plugs into a phone jack. Sign up for an account, and sign up for online banking with your bank.

CUSTOMER: But where does the money come out?

TECH: I'm not sure I understand?

CUSTOMER: You know ... Does the money come out from that slot on the computer?

The kind of creativity you don't want in the workplace

A pharmacist comes back from his break and sees a man leaning against the wall, his face strained and nervous. He asks his assistant: "What's wrong with that man over there?"

"He came in looking for cough medicine," she replies. "I couldn't find any, so I gave him a whole bottle of laxatives."

"Oh great!" steamed the pharmacist. "He is going to sue us now. You don't give laxatives to a person with a cough!"

"Well," said the clerk defensively, "look at him. He's afraid to cough!"

Lighter Side

On love

Once you have loved someone, you'd do anything in the world for them ... except love them again.

— Anonymous

Love has the power of making you believe what you would normally treat with the deepest suspicion.

— Mirabeau

Three things can't be hidden: cough-ing, poverty and love.

— Yiddish proverb

To love is to suffer. To avoid suffer-ing one must not love. But then one suffers from not loving. Therefore to love is to suffer; not to love is to suf-fer. To suffer is to suffer. To be happy is to love. To be happy then is to suffer. But suffering makes one unhappy. Therefore, to be unhappy one must love, or love to suffer, or suffer from too much happiness. I hope you're getting this down.

— Woody Allen

On marriage

A lady of 47 who has been married 27 years and has six children knows what love really is and once described it for me like this: 'Love is what you've been through with somebody.'

— James Thurber

The people people have for friends Your common sense appall But the people people marry Are the queerest folk of all.

— Charlotte Perkins Gilman

On Valentine's Day

Sales Ad at a Store: 'You are my one and only' valentine cards, now on sale: 4 for $5. I feel bad for people who die on Valentine's Day. How much would flowers cost then, ten grand?

— Jay Leno

On hesitation

He who hesitates is a damn fool.

— Mae West

It's like magic. When you live by yourself, all your annoying habits are gone!

— Merrill Markoe

On time

Instant gratification takes too long.
