EDITOR'S LETTER

November is gone and Christmas is around the corner. I don't know if time is flying by or if I am sleeping through it. When you get this edition Dick and I will be there. (God willing) Stay Safe

PRESIDENTS LETTER

By Chris Green

Hello Everyone I hope all is well with you and yours
I never expected Covid-19 would last this long even though the experts predicted it. As a result of this and ongoing health concerns, I have decided it is in the best interest of Bill & I as well as the social club that I resign my position as president

My "active" years offered an amazing learning curve as well as a tremendous opportunity to meet people I would not have otherwise met and friended

I have said it before and shall say it one last time: nothing would have been as much fun without the support of the board (such a patient group)

We had such fun (mostly) honored The True Heroes in the most beautiful way and ate and drank like our lives depended on it. It was hard work but so worth it to see the smiles on your faces

Be Blessed and remember

Kindness Matters

Chris

KOFFEE KLATCH

By Sandy Rassmussen

Thanks to Mark Rassmussen who still gets up at 5am and meets Henry from Sunshine Bakery to get Saturday morning donuts. We are currently meeting down at the Bay at 8-9 am watching the beautiful sunrise, or by the Laundry room during wet weather. We have had a few birthday parties, when donuts are free, or there is $1.00 for donut and coffee. We will continue to adhere to social distancing and facemasks for every ones protection.

THE HOPE RIBBON

By Sandy Rassmussen

During this time of pandemic and politic al upheaval, I would like to start a new sense of Hope in our community. Many have lost friends and loved ones to this Covid-19 and other tragedies. Many of our friends and neighbors have decided to move back home by family or have passed away.

Lets get together and welcome our new and old Japanese Garden residents to Bayside Waters, the HOPE ribbon. There will get 12 chairpersons who will be responsible for the ribbon their designated month, Educating and providing an event on the designated awareness. This will be for 12 months, starting in October, sharing hope and encouragement throughout the year.

Our symbol, recognizing the 12 months of Awareness, will be the large 5ft wooden ribbon. Being called, THE HOPE RIBBON, painted by Char Thompson . Made by resident , it will be posted on the yard of Chairpersons choice, unless the Chairpersons would like to designate an Awareness location. The hope is that there will be Fundraisers and one event that month recognizing the awareness ribbon. Proceeds from fundraising portions to be distributed to Awareness group determined by Chairperson/committee.

Rummage Sale

By Noreen Adams

APOCALYPSE ... NOT!!

I know it seems as if the world as we know it changed forever. It has. But we are all resilient and many have survived much worse. We can do this, together. Know that you are loved and missed and we will be together again.

Even the Social Club activities still go on. Mark and Sandy make sure Saturday morning coffee goes on,, by the bay.(we adapt) They have worked very hard to keep the community involved during these trying times.

Sooo, THE RUMMAGE SALE IS ON It won't be at the club house.

It will be a community sale. A "get out of the house".. and visit with your neighbors in the open air , with sanitizer and wipes, bring your mask or we will have disposables. We want to see you !! We have so much to catch up on.

From the Anxiety and Depression Association of America (www.adaa.org):

“Generalized Anxiety Disorder (GAD) is characterized by persistent and excessive worry about a number of different things. People with GAD may anticipate disaster and may be overly concerned about money, health, family, work, or other issues. Individuals with GAD find it difficult to control their worry. They may worry more than seems warranted about actual events or may expect the worst even when there is no apparent reason for concern.

GAD is diagnosed when a person finds it difficult to control worry on more days than not for at least six months and has three or more symptoms. This differentiates GAD from worry that may be specific to a set stressor or for a more limited period of time.

GAD affects 6.8 million adults, or 3.1% of the U.S. population, in any given year.

Women are twice as likely to be affected. The disorder comes on gradually and can begin across the life cycle, though the risk is highest between childhood and middle age. Although the exact cause of GAD is unknown, there is evidence that biological factors, family background, and life experiences, particularly stressful ones, play a roll. Sometimes just the thought of getting through the day produces anxiety. People with GAD don’t know how to stop the worry cycle and feel it is beyond their control, even though they usually realize that their anxiety is more intense than the situation warrants. All anxiety disorders may relate to a difficulty tolerating uncertainty and therefore many people with GAD try to plan or control situations. Many people believe worry prevents bad things from happening so they view it is risky to give up worry.

At times, people can struggle with physical symptoms such as stomachaches and headaches. When their anxiety level is mild to moderate or with treatment, people with GAD can function socially, have full and meaningful lives, and be gainfully employed. Many with GAD may avoid situations because they have the disorder or they may not take advantage of opportunities due to their worry (social situations, travel, promotions, etc). Some people can have difficulty carrying out the simplest daily activities when their anxiety is severe.”

The Mayo Clinic Health System staff suggests trying the exercise below the next time your mind is stuck on the worry setting. Sit quietly. Look around you and notice:

- 5 things you can see: Your hands, the sky, a pen, a spot on the wall
- 4 things you can physically feel: Your feet on the ground, a ball, your hair
- 3 things you can hear: The wind blowing, children’s laughter, your breath
- 2 things you can smell: Fresh-cut grass, coffee, soap
- 1 thing you can taste: A mint, gum, coffee or tea

This exercise helps you shift your focus to your surroundings in the present moment and away from what is causing you to feel anxious. It can help interrupt unhealthy thought patterns.

If you know someone is having an anxiety attack you should stay with them, speak in short simple sentences, be predictable and stable, help slow the person’s breathing by breathing with them and counting slowly to 10.

Finally, be a friend, do not criticize or add pressure, anxiety is a disorder that is hard and complicated. Compassion, kindness, and understanding would be a beautiful gift

Calm your ocean

A master and his disciple were strolling on the beach by the ocean. It was a cold day and the wind was blowing strongly over the ocean, raising very high waves.

After walking for some time, the master stopped and asked: “What does the choppy ocean remind you of?”

“It reminds me of my mind and my rushing and restless thoughts,” answered the disciple

“Yes, the stormy ocean is like the mind, and the waves are the thoughts,” the master agreed. “The mind is neutral like the water. It is neither good nor bad. The wind is creating the waves, as desires and fears produce thoughts.”

“How can I calm the waves of my mind?” the disciple asked.

The master smiled. “You don’t calm the ocean by holding the water and not letting it move. What is necessary is to stop the wind. Your thoughts, desires and fears are like the wind, and you need to calm them down, and not let them rule your life. You learn to control them by controlling your attention and focus, and then the ocean of your mind would become calm.”

“And how do I do that?”

“First, learn to calm down the wind in your mind,” the master explained. “When you can control your mind and make it peaceful, you will have more control of your life. However, don’t focus on changing the outside world. Focus on changing and calming your inner world. After you are able to control your inner world, you would be able to control the world around you.”

Build the road

Born on the lowest rung of India’s caste system, Dashrath Manjhi worked in the coal mines of Gehlaur village.

One day his wife was injured. The nearest doctor was in a town 34 miles away, and Manjhi’s wife died.

Because of this, Manjhi decided to make a new roadway through a ridge of hills to make his village more accessible.

For 22 years, using only a hammer and chisel, Manjhi worked until he completed the road, which reduced the distance between the start and finish areas from 34 miles to 9.3 miles.

That’s a sign of dedication.

If a child is to keep alive his inborn sense of wonder, he needs the companionship of at least one adult who can share it, rediscovering with him the joy, excitement, and mystery of the world we live in.

—Rachel Carson

Numbers In The News

Health care is changing—will consumers adapt?

Health care is becoming more dependent on phone calls and artificial intelligence to treat patients instead of relying primarily on in-person appointments. The public may not be ready, though. A Harris poll, reported on the Xtelligent website, found that only one in five consumers would trust AI-generated health care advice, although responses were different between generations. Among adults 18–34, 22% say they would trust AI guidance, but only 10% of adults 65 or older say the same.

When it comes to phone appointments, a third of consumers actually prefer receiving health care advice over the phone, compared to 30% who prefer in-person visits, 25% who prefer online advice, 6% who prefer mobile apps, and 5% who prefer AI. Women are more likely to prefer the use of a phone for health care advice than men (36% to 28%).

The AI market for health care is expected to increase at a compound annual growth rate of 50.2% between 2018 and 2025, from $2.1 billion in 2018 to $36.1 billion by 2025.

More attention to health during outbreak

The COVID-19 outbreak has Americans paying more attention to their health, according to a study by Rally Health, Inc. Its survey found that 43% say the outbreak has motivated them to focus on their overall health more than before. Forty-nine percent are more aware of their physical health, and 44% are paying more attention to their mental health.

Many people are striving to take more control of their health these days as a result. Twenty-four percent are eating more healthfully, 21% are exercising on a more regular basis, and 21% are paying closer attention to their mental health — depression, stress, and the like.
