The business of forgiveness

A marketer and a retail merchant, who attended the same church, struck a business deal together. The marketer heard that the merchant wanted to expand his operation, so the marketer offered the merchant a line of credit on goods to be sold in the store.

Soon after the merchant had used the line of credit, he fell on hard times. Business was bad, and he was unable to pay off his debts. The marketer was troubled. Not only had his first deal with the merchant gone sour, but now it seemed that he might never recover the thousands of dollars owed to him.

In his heart, the marketer knew that the merchant was an honest man who just did not have the resources to settle the debt. The marketer didn't want to contribute to the ruin of the merchant, so he followed his heart and forgave the debt. Soon afterward, the merchant went bankrupt and closed his store.

Years passed. One day, the daughter of the bankrupt merchant visited the marketer. She offered him a small diamond-studded bracelet—a family heirloom—as partial payment for her father's debt.

The marketer explained to the woman that the debt had been long forgiven. But the woman insisted that he accept the offering—if not as payment, then as a token of appreciation. The marketer humbly accepted.

Several days later, he took the bracelet to a jeweler to be appraised and was astonished to learn that its value equaled the amount of the merchant's debt. The marketer returned to his office and entered "Paid in Full" into his ledger—next to the merchant's name.

Own your words. Your words are the maps of your intentions.

New Earth-like world detected light-years away

The hunt for Earth-like worlds outside our solar system has reached another milestone. The Science Daily website reports that NASA's Transiting Exoplanet Survey Satellite (TESS) has discovered an Earth-size planet in a star's habitable zone, the orbital area where conditions could be right for life.

Although many extrasolar worlds have been found, few the size of Earth have been seen in the “Goldilocks zone”—an orbit that's neither too close to a sun nor too far away, but “just right.” The planet, TOI 700 d, is 100 light-years away in the southern constellation of Dorado. It orbits its sun every 37 days and receives 86% of the energy that our sun provides to Earth. It and other planets in the system appear to be tidally locked, meaning as they circle in their orbits, one side is constantly bathed in daylight.

It's the first time TESS has discovered an Earthlike planet. Other such planets have been detected by NASA's Kepler Space Telescope.

Fun fact: The star was initially classified incorrectly in the TESS database as being similar to our sun, which made its planets appear bigger and hotter than they actually are. One of the researchers who identified the error was a high-school student.

Genetic tweak makes earthworms live longer

We can't make people immortal—yet—but scientists have discovered some genetic tweaks that can extend the lives of earthworms by 500%, according to the Science Alert website.

The earthworms in the study live only two or three weeks, making them good candidates for experiments involving genetic and metabolic processes that they share with humans. Scientists have already discovered that changing the worms' insulin signaling pathway can increase their lifespan 100%. Similarly, alterations to a pathway called TOR (target of rapamycin) results in a 30% extension.

A new study has found that genetically shifting both pathways appears to cause an effect four to five times higher than the single genetic procedure—a synergistic approach that pulls a combination of networks together for the long term.

It's unclear whether the research will ever result in expanded human lifespans, as humans live longer than a few weeks, making experimentation more difficult (and ethically problematic). For now, scientists will have to rely on shorter-lived species like worms, fruit flies, and mice—although in the last year scientists were able to extend the life of mice and reduce their chances of cancer by working with their telomeres.

Obesity affects teen brains

Obesity is a problem at any age, but a new study suggests it has specific risks for teenagers. As the U.S. News & World Report website explains, advanced MRI techniques show that obese teens tend to have less integrity in the white matter of their brains (white matter contains fibers that connect different parts of the brain). The lower white matter integrity was observed in the region of the brain associated with emotional control and reward seeking.

The study looked at 120 teenagers, and its findings are considered preliminary. Researchers speculate that excess body fat damages the brain through inflammation. The study found a correlation between higher levels of inflammatory substances in the blood and lower white matter integrity. Excess body fat can contribute to inflammation.

The teens whose brains were affected tended to have higher levels of leptin, which is involved in appetite control, in their blood, as well as insulin, which regulates the body's blood sugar.

Doctors point out that obesity has many causes and shouldn't be dismissed as a simple lack of willpower about eating. It's unclear at this point whether obesity is responsible for the change in white matter integrity, or vice versa—or a combination of both.

Exercise lowers depression risk

If you or someone you know suffers from depression, this news could help. An article on the MedicineNet website reports that 35 minutes of exercise a day could help lower the risk of depression, even among people with a genetic predisposition for it.

Researchers at Massachusetts General Hospital in Boston analyzed two years' worth of medical records and genetic information from close to 8,000 people. They calculated a genetic risk score for each person that predicted the likelihood of depressive episodes. The data showed that people with a higher genetic risk were likely to be diagnosed with depression within two years, but physically active people with the same score—or even a higher one—were less likely to suffer from depression. For every four hours of exercise a week, the risk of depressive episodes decreased by 17%. Both intense, aerobic workouts and low-intensity practices like stretching and yoga showed the same effect.

Getting active may be the key to mental as well as physical well-being.

What you know is what you know

A man driving through the country stopped at a small farm to ask for directions. “Can you tell me how to get to Route 49?”

“Nope,” drawled the farmer as he chewed on a piece of straw.

“Well, then do you know where the turnpike is located?”

The farmer thought for a minute and then shook his head, “Nope.”

“How about Duncan? Surely you can tell me how far I am from the town of Duncan?”

Again the farmer just shook his head.

Frustrated, the driver snapped, “You don’t know much of anything, do you?”

To which the farmer replied, “Nope, but I know I’m not lost.”

An unexpected answer

A preschool teacher showed her students a display of magnets and explained their uses. The children were excited and amazed by these items and spent the rest of the morning playing with the magnets and asking the teacher questions.

Later in the day the teacher decided to quiz the class on what they’d learned. “Who can guess what I am?” she asked. “My name starts with M and I pick up things.”

Imagine her surprise when the children shouted in unison, “Mommy!”

Curiosity about life in all of its aspects, I think, is still the secret of great creative people.

New technology

“I’ve finally done it!” shouted the inventor. “I’ve created a computer that is almost human.”

“You mean it can actually think?” asked another scientist in the room.

“No,” said the inventor. “However, when it makes a mistake, it blames another computer.”

Priorities

A college freshman at home for a weekend asked his father, “Do you think it’s better to be healthy or wealthy?”

His father replied, “Son, when you have good health, you have everything.”

My health means more to me than any money or material possession.”

“Well, in that case,” said the young man, “Can I have $50 and the car?”

A dog’s life

A man was walking through the park when he came upon a boy playing a game of chess against a dog. “This is incredible,” the man shouted. “That is one smart dog!”

“He’s all right, I guess,” the boy replied. “I’ve already beat him two out of three games.”

Monthly Mania: It Pays (Up to $100) To Patronize the Advertisers in Your Newsletter

THOUSANDS manufactured home residents have won over $152,600 since our contest began. It's simple to play ... when you patronize a current advertiser, ask for a Monthly Mania ticket (or a reasonable facsimile) and fill it out completely. Put the ticket in our Monthly Mania drop box in your community or mail your paid receipt to us at Monthly Media • 220 Bahama St. • Venice, FL 34285. That's all you do. At the end of the month the Publishers will pick up the tickets and hold a drawing. If your ticket is drawn, we mail you a check.

(Allow 4-6 weeks for mailing of check). This month's cash winners are:
