WOW! WHAT A STORM!

Monday June 6th started out as a dreary wet day. All morning long I kept receiving emergency alerts on my cell phone saying Tropical Storm Warnings in effect. So I kept watching and waiting for the big storm to hit. Well it did rain and had a few claps of thunder but nothing major. I thought wow this isn't that bad at all! I have seen severe thunderstorms that were worse then this was. Little did I know but the worst was yet to come. So I sat and watched and waited. Still nothing major. We had a few gusts of wind during the day but mostly it was just heavy rain. I went to go out to the store and tried to use the back gate but realized the managers of the park had locked it up and roped off the area. So had to turn around and go out front. I thought wow did they really think it was going to be that bad? As the day progressed it kept raining and raining. Tuesday morning I woke up at 6:00 am to an alert on my phone saying flood warning for our area so I got up and looked out my window. The front pond had overflowed its banks and flooded the road in front of my house! And it was still raining hard! I thought great I survived the floods in New York State in 2006 and in 2011 without any effects only to move down here and be flooded out the first summer I was here! I went out and measured how deep the water was, at that time it was 6 inches deep in front of my place. After a little while I decided I had better go somewhere in case it got higher so I went to a friends house on Bay Street. I discovered that Bay Street was the only street in the park that didn't have any flooding. I realized after awhile that I had forgot my charger for my phone so when we had a break from the heavy rain I decided to walk back over to my house and grab it. I went down 1st way and had to walk through a foot of water. ( of course watching for snakes or critters that might be in the water the whole way). By then the water was half way up my driveway. I grab the charger and headed back to Bay. By late afternoon the rain had stopped and the sun was shining so I decided that I should go back and check on my place. To my surprise a lot of the streets that were flooded earlier were now dry. Of course the areas that surrounded the ponds were still flooded but the water was receding quickly. So my thoughts were phew got through that one with no problems. About 10:30 that night I went to bed and discovered my entire bed was soaked! My roof had leaked! I had someone come and look at it and they said that it leaked because there was a hole in the seam and the driving rains from the storm had gotten up under it so thankfully I didn't need a whole new roof. I guess Mother Nature wanted me to remember my first summer in Florida!

SCAM FACEBOOK FRIEND REQUESTS

The Editor

[There have been multiple reports and instances of Gateway Facebook users receiving friend requests from other residents that they have already Confirmed as Friends. Your NewsNDos Editor has received two such requests over the past 6 months. The following is reprinted (with permission) from the Website RicksDailyTips dot com and describes how and why this occurs and instructs you what to do when you receive a Facebook Friend Request from someone who is already your Friend.]

There is a type of scam making the rounds that is even more insidious than most. Scammers are making virtual copies of real Facebook accounts by copying the photos and info from the real account's "About" page to the fake ones. They then send friend requests to the friends listed on the real account.

Once the scammer has most or all of the original account holder's friends onboard, there are countless ways those friends can be scammed because, well, we tend to trust our friends, right?

One of the most common scams perpetrated after a fake account has been created and populated with your friends is messaging you asking for money to help get them through some crisis. The "crises" used vary but they usually include some variation of needing help with medical or travel expenses. You didn't know that cousin Bob was robbed while visiting London? He has no ID, no cash, and no way home! Surely you can help out cousin Bob? All he needs is $800 sent by Western Union – ASAP of course! Well, you get the picture.

Luckily, while this is one of the most dangerous scams going, it is also one of the easiest to avoid. If you receive a friend request from someone you are already friends with, search your friend list to see if you are still friends with that person. If you are, you have just received a friend request from a duplicate (and probably fake) Facebook account.

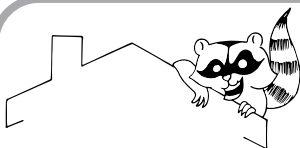

Some people do open duplicate accounts for whatever reason so there is always a chance that the friend request really came from your friend and not a scammer. Find out by messaging your friend from the account they are already friends with and ask if the friend request is legit. Even better, call them on the phone or visit them in person and ask.

If the new account turns out to be fake (and it probably will), report it to Facebook. Here's how:

- 1 – Go to the Timeline page of the fake Facebook account.
- 2 – Hover your mouse over the button labeled with 3 dots (it's located beside the Message button), then click Report.
- 3 – Click Report this account.
- 4 – Select Report XXXXX's account.
- 5 – Click the Continue button.

You have just reported the fake account to Facebook, and they do take action. But they'll take action faster if several people report the account instead of just you.

I recommend letting the friend who had his/her account copied know about it ASAP so he/she can report the fake account too. Then ask all of your friend's friends to do the same. If Facebook receives several reports about the same fake account, they usually investigate and shut it down fairly quickly.

OUR SPECIAL SUMMER

O hio has presented Kathy and me with a special experience this summer. As many of you know we choose to spend a few months there when the weather becomes bearable. This summer we find ourselves at 'ground zero' for the 17 year periodic cicada hatch. This is the fifth that I have experienced over my life and I can recall each except my first when I was only two years old.

Periodic cicadas are about the size of Florida's large palmetto bugs. They have lived out the years feeding on the juices of tree roots and emerge every 17 years when ground temperature reaches about 65 degrees. There are millions of them! In heavily wooded areas, they literally cover the ground. They usually climb a tree where their protective shell dries and they emerge, much as a butterfly does from its silk spun cocoon. They do not eat, in fact they do not even have mouths. Male and female, they fly to a convenient location and set about finding a mate. The males emit a vibrating humming sound and with the vast numbers the volume is extraordinary; it is akin to the background noise of high pitched speaker static (Kathy says it resembles tinnitus) and begins each morning and lasts throughout the day.

This unique and interesting natural occurrence will span 4 to 6 weeks and then be gone for 17 years. Different locations throughout the eastern United States share this experience during different years. Maps of areas and details for hatchings are available on the internet. Try checking [<http://www.magicicada.org/report/report.php>] for information about this amazing feat of nature.

GATEWAY COMMUNITY DIRECTORY

N ew directories were distributed with the May issue of NewsNDos. Please take the time to review your information to verify that it is correct and as you wish it to appear. If you desire any changes or corrections please contact me at the email or phone number below. These directories are meant for use by residents and should not be casually discarded or left at the Clubhouse. Should yours become lost, destroyed or be eaten by a pet please feel free to contact Peter Soehnlén, Editor of NewsNDos at (727) 269-9569 or GAOnews@tampabay.rr.com for a replacement. Additional copies will NOT be available at the Park Office.

GATEWAY LET'S CONNECT

June Boudreau, Coordinator

Want to be reminded of the activities schedule for the park? Then join in Let's Connect by sending your e-mail address to juneboudreau5@gmail.com with a Subject Line of Let's Connect.

Let's Connect is a great way to stay aware of those once a month Gateway activities that we usually remember just hours before or the next day after the event. Event emails usually arrive a few days ahead but just in time for you to adjust your schedule and post a reminder to your calendar.

The Let's Connect notices now go to over 100 throughout the Park and is a great way to be reminded of events and regular activities.

ANNIVERSARIES, BIRTHDAYS

The Editor

Wedding Anniversaries and Birthdays listed each month in the NewsNDos are based upon information supplied directly to the Editor or to the Welcome committee person who contacted you when you took up residence at Gateway. These dates are maintained separate from Park Directory information and are published only when people have chosen to share this 'personal' information.

If you do not see your name(s) listed it is because the Editor does not have the information in the Anniversary and Birthday Data Files and if you wish the information be published please contact the Editor, Peter Soehnlén, 10402 1st Street; (727) 269-9569, or; GAONews@tampabay.rr.com.

Stories to tell your grandkids

Most children enjoy hearing their grandparents tell stories. You can captivate your grandchildren for hours at a time with some of these tales that are certain to pique their interest:

- How their grandparents met. Did you meet your future wife in grade school? Did you initially dislike the man you eventually married? Children are often curious about how people in their lives ended up together—and they'll like the joy they see in your eyes as you talk about your enduring love.
- The day their parents were born. Kids usually like hearing about their parents. Describe in detail what happened the day their father or mother was born: what time they came, what you were hearing, who helped out, and most important—how you felt.
- The day they were born. Do the same with a story about your grandchild's birth. What preparations did you make? What did you expect? When did you first see your grandchild? What did he or she look like?
- School days. School has changed a lot since you were a child. Talk about what your typical day was like. Describe your favorite teacher. Discuss challenges you had. Tell children what life in a classroom was like without computers, DVDs, and other modern technology they take for granted.
- First jobs. Talk about the restaurant where you washed dishes, or the shop where you stocked shelves. Tell children about your best and worst bosses, experiences helping customers, and what you learned from each position.
- Proudest achievements. Think back to the moments in your life when you felt proud. You'll teach your grandchildren to try hard, never quit, and take pride in their accomplishments.

A man went to the doctor because he had no energy. After asking a few questions, the doctor wrote a series of prescriptions.

"Now," she told the patient. "I want you to take the red pill with two glasses of water in the morning, the yellow pill with two glasses of water at lunch, and the green pill will three glasses of water before you go to bed."

"Wow," the man sighed. "What do the pills do?"

"Nothing. You're not drinking enough water."

Advice from the A-List

Celebrities aren't necessarily smarter than the rest of us, but their success speaks for itself. Here's what they have to say about achieving success in any endeavor:

- Leonardo DiCaprio, actor: "I've been very lucky to have achieved a lot of the things that I dreamt of achieving as a young man. But at the end of the day—and I truly believe this—it is not about achieving great wealth or success, because they don't bring happiness ultimately. They really don't. What matters is whether or not you've fulfilled the idea of having led an interesting life, whether you've contributed in some way to the world around you."
- Beyoncé, singer: "The reality is, sometimes you lose. And you're never too good to lose, you're never too big to lose, you're never too smart to lose; it happens. And it happens when it needs to happen. And you have to embrace those things."
- Justin Timberlake, singer: "I like being a beginner. I like the moment where I can look at everyone and say, 'I have no idea how to do this. Let's figure it out.'"
- Chris Pine, actor: "Fear runs our lives. It doesn't matter who you are. You have to understand your relationship with fear. Whether you're scared of getting into a relationship or taking the new job or a confrontation—you have to size fear up."
- Ellen DeGeneres, talk show host: "Never follow anyone else's path, unless you're in the woods and lost and you see a path. Then, by all means, follow that path."

Succeed with kindness—and these kindly tips

Nice people can finish first. The key is knowing how to use kindness to your advantage. Practice these habits until they become second nature:

- First, be kind to yourself. You'll find being nice to others easier if you build your self-respect with positive thoughts about your personality and achievements.
- Treat everyone with respect. Don't worry about who's on top. Treat everyone the way you want to be treated, regardless of their position or job title.
- Say no when necessary. You can't do everything. But when you do say no, be polite and positive.
- Plant seeds of kindness. Do something nice every day even when your kindness may not have an immediate payoff.
- Complete this statement: "If I were a better person I would ____." Then act on it.
