Dunedin Community Chorus

The Christmas concert of just yesterday did enhance our enjoyment of the season and we look forward to the concert February 23 at 3:00 in the Dunedin Community Center. Jan Kearney and Jerry Archambault will continue to sing beginning just after the Christmas break. Typically the second concert of the year features lots of show tunes that we have all enjoyed over the years. The concert goes from Glenwood take pride in contributing our donations as a group and the Glenwood Gang is designated as a Golden Angel contributor.. If you would like to be a part of that giving, please see JR Hall or Judy Lee at Sat. coffees during January and early February.

MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Happy New Year to all our residents. Hopefully, 2020 will be a healthy, happy year for everyone. The Board of Directors has been busy putting together the annual unit owners meeting scheduled for January 13, 2020. We encourage ALL residents to attend this very important meeting. The meeting will not be able to move forward without a quorum in attendance.

Additionally: there are a few items we would like to bring forward related to the safety here in the community.

- The speed limit here in the park is 15 mph.
- ALL changes to the outside of the unit need to be approved by the Board of Directors.
- All renters are required to register at the office.
- Personal information change for all residents need to be documented at the office.
- When ownership of the unit is being transferred to a member of the family the office should be informed of the change.
- When a unit is being sold, the office needs to be informed.
- When you have a medical emergency, you need to call 911.

These are a few issues that residents need to know. Additional information is available in our By-Laws and Rules and Regulations. Thank you for your cooperation.

Regards,
Catherine Cutting

Mammoth traps uncovered in Mexico

Ancient humans dug pits to trap and kill giant mammoths some 15,000 years ago, according to an article on the Weather Channel website. Archeologists in Mexico have unearthed two large pits and discovered hundreds of bones from the giant beasts at the bottom.

The pits were discovered during a dig at Tultepec, a town north of Mexico City. They're five to six feet deep and 80 feet long, and archeologists have excavated more than 800 bones from 14 individual mammoths. The haul includes eight skulls, five jaws, and hundreds of other assorted remains.

Previously scientists believed that ancient humans chased mammoths off cliffs, or led them into swamps to get stuck and die. The find is the first evidence that humans that long ago directly hunted and attacked mammoths for food, fur, and other uses.

This is a simple line drawing of a globe showing the continents of North and South America. The globe is tilted slightly to the right. The title "North America Globe" is printed above the globe.

Long-missing tiny deer found again in Vietnam

A small species of deer that was suspected to be extinct has been found again. The animal, a chevrotain, also known as the Vietnam mouse-deer, is the size of large house cat, with a silver stripe down its back. It lives in Vietnam, where it was first described in the early 20th century, but it hadn't been seen since 1990.

Researchers traveled through Vietnam talking to villagers and forest rangers, some of whom described an animal that resembled the chevrotain. They mounted motion-activated cameras on trees where the creatures had been sighted.

After five months they began searching through the photos—and found 270 images of chevrotains. After a second five-month surveillance, they gathered 1,881 more images.

It's unclear how many creatures they captured on camera or whether the species is endangered. The researchers hope to gather more images and data to determine whether the population is stable.

Health benefits of the avocado

Avocado toast is a thing, but whether you think it's an overhyped millennial trend or not, research suggests that it's good for you—the avocado part, at least.

A study published in the Journal of Nutrition and reported in an article on the Bicycling website found that eating one avocado a day is associated with significantly lower levels of types of LDL—the bad cholesterol—in adults who are overweight or obese. In addition, avocado also improves levels of lutein, an antioxidant associated with heart health, by more than 68%, and one avocado supplies about half of the dietary fiber that fights heart disease you need every day. So go ahead—have another slice of avocado toast.

Curb your diet just a little to help your heart

Cutting a modest number of calories from your daily diet could have a significant impact on the health of your heart, according to an article on the NPR website.

In a two-year study, 218 people 21–50 years old who were of normal weight or slightly overweight were placed on different diets. Some were on a diet that reduced their calorie intake by 25%, while others were assigned a normal diet. For four weeks they ate at a clinical center and were counseled on how to cut calories. After that, they adopted an eating plan based on their personal preferences. Although at first most stuck to their diets and reduced calories by about 20%, by the end of the study that figure had dropped to about 12%—just 300 fewer calories per day.

Still, even this modest reduction led to an average weight loss of 16.5 pounds, lower cholesterol and blood pressure, improved insulin resistance and metabolic rates, and other factors associated with heart health.

Our greatest happiness does not depend on the condition of life in which chance has placed us, but is always the result of a good conscience, good health, occupation, and freedom in all just pursuits.
