Start your morning the right way

If you grab a doughnut and dash out of the house in the morning, you might be in an unhealthy rut. Here are a few ideas for you to start your morning in a better way:

- Get up 20 minutes early so you don't have to rush.
- Listen to a relaxing CD in the morning instead of the morning news.
- Get rid of that annoying alarm clock, and buy one that wakes you up with a light aroma or pleasant tones.
- Think of all the things you are grateful for.
- Get centered before you go out into the world. Take a few minutes to meditate or do yoga.
- Get up early enough to do a short exercise routine.
- Set one goal or intention for the day. Close your eyes and concentrate on what it is you want to accomplish.
- Write in your journal.
- Drink your favorite beverage from your favorite mug, and take a few minutes to absorb the entire experience.
- Get up with the sun, and take a relaxing walk.

April Days

April Fools' Day, April 1. Play a (harmless) prank on a friend, co-worker, or family member today.

National Siblings Day, April 10. This is a good time to reconnect with brothers and sisters and strengthen family bonds.

Easter, April 12. Christians celebrate the resurrection of Jesus Christ following his crucifixion on Good Friday.

Tax Day, April 15. The people who understand tax law are an elite few; the rest of us need only concern ourselves with a couple of key points: Just about everyone needs to file, and that should be done by the end of today.

Earth Day, April 22. Keep the car in the garage and ride your bike today. Visit your local farmer's market, plant a native tree, limit your reliance on single-use plastics, recycle, repurpose, and do something to honor and protect our planet.

Denim Day, April 29. During the last Wednesday of National Sexual Assault Awareness Month, wear your jeans to work to protest the abhorrent attitudes and injustices endured by victims of rape and sexual violence. Consider sponsoring a "Denim for Dollars" campaign if your workplace has a dress code or requires uniforms. Learn more at <https://www.denimdayinfo.org/dollars-for-denim>.

Libraries still healthy in the U.S.

Those of us who worry that libraries are on their way out should take heart from a recent survey reported on the CNN website. In 2019, more Americans went to the library than to movies, live sporting events, museums, concerts, casinos, and other places.

U.S. adults reported that they visited the library 10.5 times on average last year, almost twice as many visits as trips to the movies. That was followed by live or theatrical events and visits to national and historic parks (about four times), museums and casinos (2.5 times) and amusement parks and zoos. The majority of library goers are 18–29.

Libraries offer more than just books, of course, likely a factor in the almost-monthly visits. These days most libraries offer free Wi-Fi, children's activities, movie rentals and more, which are attractive to young adults, women, and people on a low income.

April

Global Astronomy Month. With a motto of “One People, One Sky,” the group Astronomers Without Borders encourages people everywhere to behold the night sky and the wonders of the universe. Look for Venus near the Pleiades star cluster, this year’s largest supermoon, and maybe a meteor shower.

National Card and Letter Writing Month. Before technology ruled our lives, before the invention of the telephone, people took pen to paper to express their thoughts and feelings. Brush up on your penmanship and embrace the art of letter writing this April.

National Rebuilding Month. This spring, volunteers will work to repair homes, community centers, and nonprofit facilities throughout the U.S. To learn more about projects planned for your area, visit <https://rebuildingtogether.org/>.

Stress Awareness Month. Be on the lookout for tips and ideas from health care and wellness professionals raising awareness of the sources of stress that affect our lives, and the strategies we can employ to alleviate and prevent it.

Weekly

Holy Week, April 5–11. A Christian observance and time of fasting, including the final days of Lent, this week begins on Palm Sunday and ends on Holy Saturday before Easter. (Orthodox Holy Week is April 12–18.)

Stewardship Week, April 26–May 3. Since 1955, the National Association of Conservation Districts has observed the last Sunday in April through the first Sunday in May as a time to raise awareness of the many ways we can conserve and protect our natural resources. To learn more, visit <https://www.nacdnet.org/>

I could never have gone far in any science, because on the path of every science, the lion mathematics lies in wait for you.

—C. S. Lewis

The rumor mill

The president of a fast-growing company called his public relations vice president to his office one day.

“Somebody is trying to buy our company,” he said, “and if they succeed, you and I will be out on our ears. I want you to do something that will get the price of our stock up so that it’ll be too expensive for them to acquire us. I don’t care what you have to do to bring this about; whatever it is, just do it!”

Within two days the stock rose 14 points, and the president was delighted. “What in the world did you do?” he asked the vice president of public relations.

“Simple,” she said. “I started a rumor, and Wall Street liked it.”

“What was the rumor?”

She looked at him and replied, “I told them you were leaving the company.”

Life before the computer

Back in the day ...

An application was a form you completed for employment.

A program was what we called a TV show.

A cursor was someone who used profanity.

A keyboard was another name for an electric piano.

Memory was something that you lost with age.

A CD was a kind of savings account.

Compress was something you did to garbage.

You’d never unzip anything in public.

Adding wood to a fire was logging on.

A long road trip was a hard drive.

A backup only happened to your plumbing.

You used a pocketknife to cut something.

Glue was required to paste anything.

A web was a trap woven by a spider.

And a virus usually referred to the flu.

Danger! Pizza!

We all love pizza—but surprisingly, it can be a dangerous meal, at least according to the New York Post. The Post’s website reports that pizza-related injuries accounted for some 3,800 trips to the emergency room nationally in 2018. That beats the 2,300 such visits the previous year by a wide margin.

The 2018 figure is the highest since the medical service provider Babylon Health started counting. The figure comes from an examination of records from 100 emergency medical departments across the country in which the word “pizza” was included in doctors’ notes. They include a teenager who poked the roof of his mouth with a fork while eating, a young woman who swallowed her tongue ring, and a woman who slipped with a bread knife in her hand while preparing to eat.

A snapshot of doctors’ lifestyles

How well do you know your doctor? A Medscape survey on physicians’ lifestyles, shared on the Fierce Healthcare website, surveyed more than 15,000 doctors from across 29 specialties, with attention to generational difference between millennials, Gen Xers, and baby boomers. Here’s some of what the survey found:

- Specialties. The most popular specialties for millennials are dermatology and neurology. Most Gen Xers choose critical care and nephrology, and boomers opt for gastroenterology and pulmonary medicine.
- Exercise. Boomer physicians exercise the most, with about 37% of boomer physicians exercising at least four days per week. Millennials do the least—only 25% exercise that much.
- Alcohol. Baby boomers are the biggest drinkers, with 21% having five or more alcoholic drinks per week, compared to 20% of Gen Xers and 17 percent of millennials.
- Cars. Across all generations, Toyota is the most popular brand for physicians, followed by Honda.

Maybe fate’s arithmetic is so diffuse that it’s not arithmetic at all.

—David Levithan

First fossil brain discovered in Utah

Scientists have long believed that brain matter could not become fossilized because soft neural tissues would decay before the fossilization process could start — but a recent discovery has overturned that misconception. The SyFy Wire website reports that paleontologists have unearthed a fossilized brain in the remains of a small arthropod (an invertebrate animal with an exoskeleton) in Utah.

The animal, an alalcomenaeus, lived during the Cambrian period some 500 million years ago. That era has left an unusual abundance of preserved plant and animal life that under most circumstances would have been lost to decay. However, researchers from Harvard studying fossils found that what looked like a stain was actually the creature's brain.

The alalcomenaeus brain is a central nervous system like those of many arthropods living today. It has an elongated brain structure from its head to its upper back and neural tissue connecting to the creature's four eyes and four pairs of segmented nerves. More nerves extend down its back.

The finding casts doubt on the idea that brains can't become fossilized, meaning that a fossil human brain could be lying underground for someone to find.

Dolphins demonstrate cooperative behavior

Humans cooperate on tasks, and so do many other animal species. Most studies on cooperative behavior have centered on land-based animals, but as the Science Daily website reports, scientists have recently observed partner-based behavior in dolphins.

Dolphins operate in social groups known as pods, which merge and split over time. However, creating experiments to test cooperative behavior has been difficult. Scientists in Japan tried one in which two dolphins received a reward for pulling at opposite ends of a rope simultaneously. The process was simple—researchers would send out a leader dolphin, called an initiator, toward the rope, wait a few seconds, then send a second dolphin after the first. The two dolphins coordinate their swimming to match each other and get to the rope—and the reward.

The lead scientists says that such coordination is probably rooted in a method of social interactions that reinforce social bonds within a group.

The right kind of milk may lead to less aging

Milk can be good for you, but choosing the right kind is essential. The Medical Xpress website reports that drinking nonfat or 1% milk instead of 2% is associated with slower aging in adults.

The findings come from research on 5,834 U.S. adults by a Brigham Young University professor.

Why? It's all about the telomeres. They're at the endcaps of human chromosomes. As cells replicate, they lose a minute amount of material at the endcaps. Thus, as we age, our telomeres get shorter. Drinking high-fat milk makes telomeres shorter. The research suggests that low-fat milk accounts for an age reduction of 4.5 years in adults. So reach for the skim and live longer.

New T-cell may be grown to fight all cancers

Scientists may have discovered a type of immune cell that kills most cancers — by accident. According to the Mother Nature Network website, a team of scientists in Cardiff, England, were studying a special type of genetic screening, using technology derived from the genomes of bacteria that can flag and edit genes within organisms. During the course of their study, they discovered a special type of human immune cell, or T-cell, capable of targeting and killing cancerous tissue and leaving normal tissue untouched.

Using T-cells to fight specific cancers isn't a new idea. However, this T-cell appears to target a wide variety of cancers, including lung, skin, blood, colon, breast, bone, prostate, ovarian, kidney, and cervical cancer. Scientists don't know yet how these T-cells single out and attack cancer while leaving normal cells untouched, but the immune response seems real.

They're already studying how to make use of them by extracting normal T-cells from blood and genetically modifying them to find cancer. After being grown in large quantities in a lab, the cells would be sent back into the patient's bloodstream.

Much more testing is needed before the process can be tried with humans, but if it works, the discovery would have as powerful an impact as the discovery of antibiotics.
